Nineteen-thirteen

Durham,
NORTH CAROLINA.

To Mr. Benjamin N. Duke
now for so many years the friend and benefactor of Trinity College
is dedicated this second volume of
The Chanticleer

DEDICATION

Foreword

We follow, with a halting pen
The Campus Spirit fleeing,
And strive to call it forth again,
For one more merry meeting.

O was it down the Lane of Cuts,
From the Cave of Midnight Singing,
Vaulting the grim, work-hardened ruts,
Was that his summons ringing?

Or was it from the Speaker's stand,
Forensic, ardent, burning?
Or flits our Ariel hand in hand
With Athletes or with Learning?

Alas, we cannot hold him well—
The rascal so devises,
That each man sees his Ariel
Through variant disguises.

BENJAMIN NEWTON DUKE

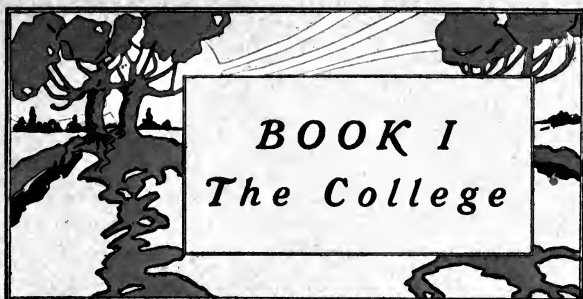

Benjamin Newton Duke

MR. BENJAMIN NEWTON DUKE was born April 27, 1855, in what is now Durham County, North Carolina. He attended the neighborhood schools, and later was sent to the New Garden Boarding School, which afterwards became Guilford College. He manifested his gratitude to this old Quaker academy in a beautiful way when in 1907 he and his brother built the handsome Memorial Hall at Guilford College. He early went to work with his father and brother in the tobacco business, the marvelous success of which is well known. For a long time now he has been intimately associated with great business and industrial enterprises of many kinds. He is largely interested in the manufacturing of tobacco and of cotton, is president or director of banks in North Carolina and New York, and is actively engaged in railroad development. Recently he and his brother, Mr. James B. Duke, have been developing water-power in North and South Carolina, and building electric railroads that will ultimately connect the important towns in the Piedmont section of the Carolinas.

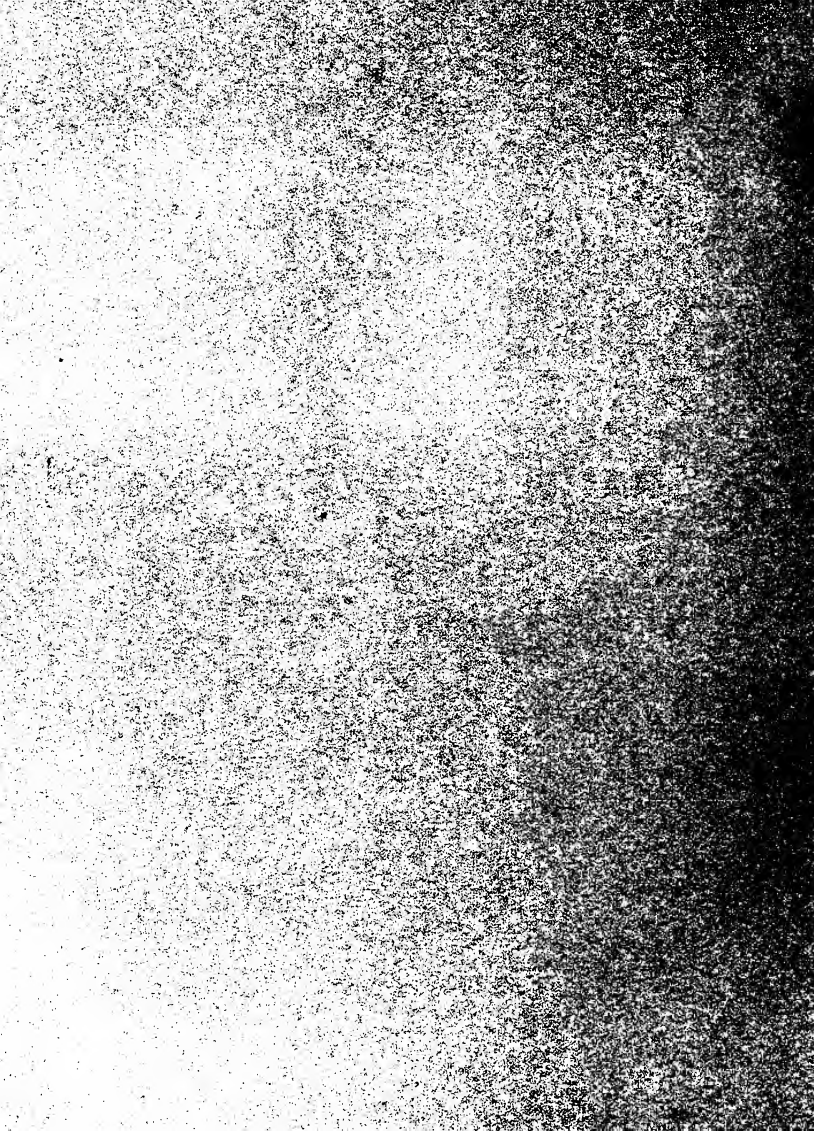

For many years Mr. Duke has contributed liberally to churches and benevolent purposes of every description, but his most significant benefactions have been to Trinity College. Along with his father, the late lamented Washington Duke, he has from the beginning of its existence in Durham, been a staunch supporter of the College. Especially since 1896 has the rapid growth of the College been primarily due to his inspiration and support. He has not only given money with great generosity, but he has exerted an influence that has always been liberating and inspiring.

IRENE ABERNETHY
CULLOWHEE, N. C.

Weaverville College and Asheville Normal. Chanticleer Board (4); Secretary Athena Literary Society (3); Critic (4); Secretary La Societe Francaise (4). "Jeff." Regular Duke's Mixture. Besides almost incredible store of lore in Department of Languages and History she has been "After-Math" also, and "can wisely tell what hour o' day the clock doth strike by algebra." Has ever been known to reduce "love" to a simple analytic diagram. Never ruffled, she maintains at all times an optimistic attitude, inspiring all about her. (Incidentally, she isn't one of those same wise persons who only are reputed so for saying nothing.) This pair often accused of being faculty pets, especially in English Department.

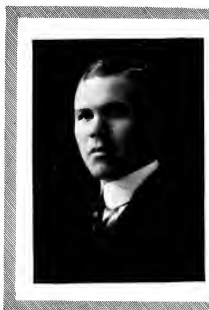

ETHEL MAE ABERNETHY
CULLOWHEE, N. C.

Rutherford and Weaverville Colleges; Asheville Normal. Chaplain Athena Literary Society (4); Critic La Societe Francaise (4).

"Polly." "Abernethy." Great on "parley-voussing" and "Deutschesprechening" and a bright and shining light on class, as well as a Godsend to less fortunates forced to dig their way through these fields. However, she hasn't neglected the practice of her mother-tongue—indeed, has she ever neglected anything? Though she resents being termed, together with sister co-eds, "those on the front row," and other like indignities, she is not a suffragette leader. Star grades and personal qualities make us expect great things from her.

SIDNEY SHERRILL ALDERMAN
GREENSBORO, N. C.

Greensboro High School. Freshman. Sophomore honors; Sophomore, Junior scholarship. Intersociety Debate (1); Sophomore Debate, Chronicle Staff (2); Board (3); Assistant Editor (3); Editor-in-Chief (4); Archive Staff (4); Chanticleer Board (3, 4); Staff (3); Class Baseball, Relay, Tennis (3); Assistant Manager Varsity Baseball (3); Secretary Columbian Literary Society (2); Ex-Com. (1, 2); President (4); College Marshal (1, 2, 3); Commencement Marshal (1, 2); Secretary Fortnightly Club (4); Glee Club (1, 2, 3); Assistant Manager (3); Quartet (2, 3); Vice-President Greater Trinity Club (4); Secretary Guilford County Club (3); President (4); Secretary Pan-Hellenic Council (3); President (4); Y. M. C. A.; "Tombs;" "9019"; Alpha Tau Omega. "Sid." "Pie." "Skidnicks." Activity has been put forth chiefly in scholarship and literary attainments, although has not neglected other interests. Student, editor, musician, speaker, friend, and good in all; one of most enviable records in whole class. "Auf wiedersehen," Sid, may you keep up the good work for 1913.

ARNOLD WESLEY BYRD

MOUNT OLIVE, N. C.

Mount Olive Graded School. Class Treasurer (4); Inter-Society Debate (3); Winner First Prize in State Peace Oratorical Contest (4); Chanticleer Board (4); Secretary Columbian Literary Society (2); Marshal (3); President (4); Secretary Debate Council (3).

"Voglein," "Avus," Little Byrd." Flew forth as our representative orator in Senior year, taking State's highest honors; also as debater helped turned the tide to Columbia, after having striven vainly once previously. Sees serious side, thus serving to offset giddy fancies of many frivolous classmates, yet enjoys the shows with the best.

FLORENCE BANTER

DURHAM, N. C.

Trinity Park School and Greensboro Female College. Athena Literary Society. "Florence." Deserted us for G. F. for a while, but, like the prodigal, returned at length unto her own, and has helped us bear our Senior dignity to the delight of all of us, especially some of the brethren who find her "dark e/c" and brunette type irresistible. Has a voice of the "evergentle" style, but refuses to expend it extravagantly on pedagogical terms or in psychological discussions.

WILLIAM ALBERT CADE

KIPLING, N. C.

Trinity Park School. Class President (3); Sophomore Honors; Inter-society Debate (1); Sophomore Debate; Varsity Debates, Trinity-Swathmore (2, 3, 4); Trinity-South Carolina (3); Secretary Debate Council (4); Chanticleer Board (3); Class Relay (2, 4); Chaplain Hesperian Literary Society (1); Ex-Com., Treasurer (2); Marshal, Secretary (3); President, Critic (4); Freshman Debaters' Medal; Chief Commencement Marshal (3); Vice-President Y. M. C. A. (3); Secretary-Treasurer Ministerial Band (3); President (4); President T. P. S. Club (4); Classical Club; Glee Club (2); "909."

"Brother Cade." Inevitable user of Romeo route to bed on Sunday nights. Good student. Our premier debater and hits the line hard in such contests, having been on more intercollegiate than anyone else in history of college; a wheel horse in all. Upright, frank, sincere, has been his life among us—nothing less than a Bishop's title will satisfy us with Brother Cade.

CORNELIUS BLACKMAN
CULBRETH

FAVETTEVILLE, N. C.

Trinity Park School. Columbian Literary Society; Captain Class Basketball team (2); Y. M. C. A. Cabinet (2); Pastor Marshal, N. C., Kenly, N. C. (2); Vanderbilt University (1909-10); Pastor Wevoka, Okla. (10-11); Mangum St. Durham (3, 4).

Culbreth's stay has been broken into by other work, but he has many friends, and the work he had done has brought him more. He is already well up in his line, and will no doubt go much higher.

WILLIAM BENJAMIN
DUNCAN, JR.

RALEIGH, N. C.

Trinity Park School. Sophomore Debate; Pan-Hellenic Council (4); "9019;" Kappa Sigma.

"Widow." Nickname apparently chosen to signify reason for separation from members of female sex. A good scout and student, who confines himself largely to the Alpha Pi's. Member of the opposition on Senior Philosophy.

HENRY ARNOLD DENNIS

CONCORD, N. C.

Goldboro High School. Chronicle Staff (3, 4); Secretary Columbian Literary Society (2); Censor (3); President Quill Club (4); Historical Society; Y. M. C. A.; Ministerial Band.

"Fig." "Hog." "Poland." "Tub." "Big-un." An ardent news-gatherer—in fact expects to prepare for the ministry by several years' newspaper work. Nicknames no disgrace, but represent more salient facts of personal appearance. Given to original disquisitions on theories of journalism and religion.

MARY EDENS

PEMBROKE, N. C.

Lumberton Graded School. Athena Literary Society.

"Podge," "The Countess of Pembroke." Judging from quiet, dignified, lady-like bearing she is a worthy descendent of the illustrious bearer of this title. Speaks up on class to the edification of all, and is a good student in every respect. For four years has moved on in even tenor of her ways, making good records. Finds it impossible to carry out doctrine of loving one's enemies, for we are sure she has never had one.

WALTER MARIE EDENS

ROWLAND, N. C.

Centenary High School. Class Track Team (2, 3); Chairman Ex-Com. Columbian Literary Society (4); Treasurer (4); President (4); Vice-President Robeson County Club (4); "9019."

"Walt." Has gradually gathered headway with the passing terms and made himself felt among his class-mates as a man of sound worth and common sense. Does good work, without making much fuss about it.

COLTON ALEXANDER
GODFREY

JONESBORO, N. C.

Trinity Park School. Athletic Council (3); Varsity Base-ball Team (1, 2, 3, 4); "Red Frier"; Kappa Alpha.

"Colt," "Rabbi," "Slim Jim." Given to making frequent midnight journeys to post-office. Four-year pitcher and better with time. Tells many tales of numerous ball trips, mostly to discomfiture of companion athletes. Somewhat fond of withering remarks fired in direction of nearest Freshman.

DAVID LYDDALL HARDEE

STEM, N. C.

Stem High School. Chanticleer Board (4); Class Basket-ball (1, 2, 3, 4); Captain Class Track Team (3); Class Relay (2, 3); President Hesperian Literary Society (4); Chief College Marshal (4); Historical Society; Science Club; Y. M. C. A. "Boots," "Dave." Shining example in proof of theory of evolution as applied to college students. Has probably made as much progress in four years as any man in the class. Very much interested in affairs of Hesperian Literary Society and in private business ventures, of which he generally makes a go. Victim of numerous pranks now lost in the oblivion of Freshman memories.

CHARLES CLEVELAND HATLEY

MT. PLEASANT, N. C.

Mt. Pleasant Collegiate Institute, Freshman, Sophomore Honors; Secretary Hesperian Literary Society (2); Chairman Ex-Com. (3); Critic (3, 4); Vice-President (4); Assistant in Greek (3); Assistant in Physics (4); Historical Society; Science Club; Y. M. C. A. "9019." Principal of Murphy High School ('09-'12).

Hatley is known for his genuine worth. Does not believe in corporal punishment, but in the means of gentler suasion. Has original and sound ideas which he imparts only as occasion demands; can appreciate good humor—ignores bad.

HENRY AUGUSTUS HAYES, JR.
WINSTON, N. C.

Reidsville Seminary. Vice-President Class (3); Winner Sophomore Debate Prize (2); Assistant Manager Basket-ball team (3); President Tennis Association (3); Class Tennis Team (1); Assistant to Registrar (2); Secretary to President (3, 4); Commencement Marshal (2); Alternate State Peace Contest (4); Pan-Hellenic Council (4); Glee Club (3); "Tomb's;" Kappa Sigma.

"Hal." Good mind that only lacks the spur of energy to attain its success. A social spirit that demands success from care in gentler company. Moving spirit in the band of critics attached to Senior Philosophy.

LEWIS DEMARO HAYMAN

SILER CITY, N. C.

Siler City High School. Ex-Com. Columbian Literary Society (2); Chaplain (2); Secretary Chatham County Club (3); Y. M. C. A.; Member N. C. Conference; Pastor Lakewood Mission four years.

"Nemo." Has been busy while with us, but has gotten off work with credit to himself and the class. Have heard that he can relate, on occasion, many tales such as Othello regaled the fair Desdemona withal we accept the statement; it seems eminently fitting. Hayman will be a credit to his college.

EDNA LEE HOLTZCLAW

ROSELAND, FLORIDA

Davenport College. Sophomore Honors; Junior Scholarship; Ailena Literary Society; La Societe Francaise.

Last addition to '13 and satisfactorily proved old theory that last is by no means necessarily least in importance. Hails from the southward, and we hope that more of her kind, of studious and ladylike habits, will find their way to our college; wish she could have passed more than mere half-year in our class.

QUINTON HOLTON

DURHAM, N. C.

Durham High School. Freshman Honors; Sophomore Junior Scholarships; Sophomore Debate; Inter-Society Debate (2); Trinity-South Carolina Varsity Debate (4); Editor-in-Chief Archive (4); Chanticleer Board (3); Secretary Hesperian Literary Society (2); Chairman Ex-Com. (3, 4); President (4); General Debaters' Medal (2); Assistant in Latin (3, 4); Glee Club (2); Classical Club; Fortnightly Club; "9019."

"Holton (J.)" Hits the line hard in scholarship and with eyes bent on summa cum laude views 90 in same light ordinary mortals regard twenty points less. Nevertheless, not a grind, and finds time for effective debating, teaching and editing. Founds the ivories to delight of hearers and enjoys operation himself. Bears family fondness for Hesperia and feeling is reciprocated.

LUCILE WATTS HUNDLEY

DURHAM, N. C.

Durham High School. Athena Literary Society; Durham High School Club.

"Plum," "Plux," "Lucilly." Much study in Biblical Department points to future as minister's helpmate. Also one of only two to save co-eds' reputation in Philosophy. Spends much time in pursuit of Education, specifically speaking, as well as generally. However, we do not believe she will be allowed to pass many years in the "school-marm" profession. Is independent and has many other attractive qualities (pictures also).

LEONARD BURWELL, HURLEY

NEW BERN, N. C.

Durham High School. Chanticleer Staff (4); Hesperian Literary Society; College Marshal (1, 2, 3, 4); Glee Club (2, 3, 4); Assistant Manager (4); Durham High School Club; Y. M. C. A.; "Red Friar"; Psi Kappa Alpha.

"Buster," "B," "Sawedoffness." Delights in art and the social graces, in which he is reputed to be a past master. Often seen in neighborhood of Fraushack and similar localities. A songster, amateur artist, and popular among the ladies.

GEORGE GRADY JOHNSON

DURHAM, N. C.

Durham High School. Botanical Club; Science Club; Y. M. C. A.; Durham High School Club; "Red Friar;" "9019."

"Johnce," "Freak," "Buckeye." Hard student and good fellow as well. Cuts wide swath in science and languages. Together with Hurley, he makes a good representation of the usual Siamese twin combination. Another man who has grown with the years.

FANNIE KILGO
DURHAM, N. C.

Trinity Park School. Secretary Senior Class; Archive Staff (4); Chanticleer Board (3, 4); Censor Athena Literary Society (3); Program Committee (4); President (4); Chairman Sorority Pan-Hellenic Council (4); Alpha Delta Phi.

"Fan." A leader. Has much common sense, ability and intense loyalty to friends and everything connected with Trinity; true to its ideals. In a word, a chip off the old block—no higher compliment could be paid her. Deservedly popular; also bears distinction of being youngest Senior girl (and of course, therefore, youngest Senior). Another of Dr. Parker's students—another co-ed delving in Philosophy.

DON RAYMOND KIRKMAN
HIGH POINT, N. C.

High Point High School. Sophomore Debate; Alternate Inter-Society Debate (4); Chanticleer Board (4); Chronicle Board (3, 4); Class Basketball (1, 2, 3, 4); Class Track (2, 3, 4); Captain (2, 4); Class Relay (2, 3); Treasurer Hesperian Literary Society (2); Secretary (3); Critic (4); Glee Club (1, 2, 3, 4); Manager (4); Guilford County Club; "Red Friar"; Sigma Chi.

"Don." "Kirk." Basso and manager of most successful Glee Club in many moons. Thinks much (with reason) of personal appearance. Good representative in class athletics; thinks law is his chosen field, and we predict success. Has own views on most subjects—love, for instance—that are worth hearing. Good student.

ROLAND LEIGH JONES
FAIRFIELD, N. C.

Fairfield Academy. "Tombs;" Kappa Alpha.

"Sot." A strictly original character. Picks crips only under necessity. Often breaks silence of weeks' duration with side-splitting oration on topic farthest removed from immediate conversation. Social in nature, but confines activities to Sunday nights. Easy to get along with and bears much in silence.

ALLEN THURMAN KNOTT

OXFORD, N. C.

Cary High School, Class Basketball (3, 4); Class Baseball (2, 3); Assistant Business Manager Chronicle (3); Manager (4); Columbian Literary Society; Y. M. C. A.; Inter-State Progressive Club; Glee Club Reader (4); "Tombs."

"Monk," "Smunk." States profession is that of planter; at least we are sure he will not long be a lone planter. Made hit as humor artist with Glee Club because of voice described as sawed off in the middle. Good natured as the day is long.

THOMAS WILLIAM LEE

GATES, N. C.

Trinity Park School, Marshal Hesperian Literary Society (3); Chaplain (3); Vice-President (4); Y. M. C. A.; Ministerial Band; Trinity Park School Club.

"T. W.," "Brother Lee." Fond of debating and always has something of interest to say when he comes on the floor. Will be a worthy representative in the ministry. Not at all averse to expressing individual opinions.

DANIEL LANE, JR.

NEW BERN, N. C.

Trinity Park School, Varsity Track Team (3); Class Relay Team (3, 4); Class Track Team (3); Chairman Ex-Com.; Columbian Literary Society (3); Chief Tribune (3); Trinity Park School Club; Vice-President Ministerial Band (4); Y. M. C. A.

"D." Some jumper and vaulter; cause of following remark from observant freshman: "What you call that fellow doing over there vaulting with a pole—pole-vaulting?" "D." is a loyal class member and can be counted on to stick up for its interests. A hard worker.

SUSAN TYRE MARKHAM

DURHAM, N. C.

Durham High School, Class Secretary (31); Vice-President Athena Literary Society (31); Ex-Com. (31); Program Committee (41); Secretary Durham High School Club (41).

"Teetic," "Snook," "Forsook." Bears close relationship to Webster's Unabridged and delights in spelling forth to consternation of freshmen and others of less "erudition." Staunch supporter of co-education, and herself an excellent example of its beneficent powers. Quite a class-ista, "a Greek in thought, if not in deed." Has genius for making friends. Makes good use of vocal organs in speech, as might be inferred from above information.

JAMES HARLE LOTSPEICH

MORRISTOWN, TENN.

Morristown High School, Emory and Henry College, Chaplain Hesperian Literary Society (41); Class Relay Team (41); Y. M. C. A. Cabinet (41); Classical Club, "Demosthenes." Nick-name probably taken from similarity between two voices, this being most striking point of resemblance. Aspires to social fame, and has the good wishes of his class mates in his endeavors. Has been with us only two years, but has made himself better known in that time than some four-year men.

SAMUEL WADE MARR

BRYSON CITY, N. C.

Weaverville College, Business Manager Archive (41), Class Track Team (41); Scrub Baseball (42, 31); Secretary Hesperian Literary Society (41); Secretary Mountain Boomers' Club (31); President (41); Science Club; Sigma Chi.

A three-year man with a reputation for good management. Travels to Raleigh as occasion (State fairs, for instance) demand. A good fellow and full of original ideas and ways of saving them, a combination hard to find. Well liked by all who know him, and there are many. Moving spirit in the College Tailors' Trust. Good stump speaker.

KEMP PRATHER NEAL

MONROE, N. C.

Monroe High School. Vice-President Senior Class; Freshman, Sophomore Honors; Assistant Editor Chronicle (3); Archive Staff (4); Chanticleer Staff (4); Board (4); Chronicle Board (3, 4); Captain Class Track Team (3); Class Relay Team (4); Secretary Columbian Literary Society (3); Chairman Ex-Com. (3); Vice-President, President (4); Assistant in Mathematics and Chemistry (3); Chief Manager Commencement (3); Y. M. C. A.; Science Club; Botanical Club; President Union County Club; "9019."

"K. P." A leader in all things relating to hard work, especially in reference to matters scientific. Also attached to many publications, and always ready with his share of the job before many have started. We expect one of the best records of the class from him.

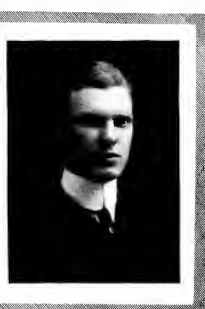

IRVING BASCOMB MCKAY

DURHAM, N. C.

President Rutherford College, Professor of Latin in Trinity Park School.

Professor McKay has honored the class by electing to take his degree with the younger members. Has a powerful influence on those members of the class who formerly sat under his tutelage. Has already shown his ability too well to need any praise or prophecy at the hands of the Chanticleer Staff.

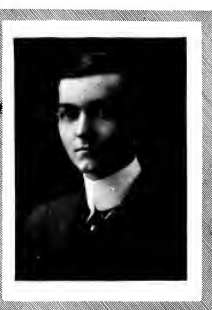

THOMAS PEOPLES PACE

MAXTON, N. C.

Trinity Park School. Chanticleer Staff (4); Class Basketball Team (2, 3); Class Baseball Team (3); Treasurer Hesperian Literary Society (3, 4); Commencement Marshal (1, 2); Vice-President Robeson County Club (3); President (4); Secretary-Treasurer Science Club (4); Botanical Club; Trinity Park School Club; Sigma Chi.

Of nicknames he says, "Generally respond to name 'Tom,' sometimes called by would-be 'funsters,' 'Perk' or 'Perkins.' Somewhat of a funster himself, and past master in the weapon of sarcasm. Has faculty for mixing and has better ideas than many who parade them more. Good man to get next to. Star scientist and efficient fun editor; likewise, has considerable pep and get there."

HUBBARD BRAXTON PORTER
CORAPEAKE, N. C.

Trinity Park School, Hesperian Literary Society; Summer Librarian (2, 3); Office Assistant (1, 2, 3, 4); Epworth Quartet (3); Glee Club (2); Y. M. C. A. Ministerial Band; Teacher Penmanship Trinity Park College (1908-'13); Battleboro Charge (3).
Penmanship is his specialty, and he is an artist at it. He also makes sweet music and is the chapel standby. Will be a fitting representative of the class in the ministry, for surely a man who can write a sermon so beautifully and sing so well will have little to ask.

JULIAN AREY RAND
RALEIGH, N. C.

Raleigh High School. Freshman and Sophomore Honors; Sophomore Debate; Chronicle Staff (3, 4); Chanticleer Staff (3); Manager Varsity Basket-ball Team (3, 4); Wake County Club; "Tombs;" "9019;" Kappa Alpha.
"Jule," "J," "Bugs." Good student and manager of the best basket-ball team in many years. Expert gravy rider, and member Athletic Association triumvirate. Easy going, but often causes surprise by forceful expression of thought in taking slang.

ETHEL MAE PRIDGEN
DURHAM, N. C.

Durham High School. Marshal Athena Literary Society (4); Durham High School Club.
"Pridgen," "Ell." Neat, even to extent of proverbial pin. Seems to have "some concord with humanity not given to others," for she has a way of grappling her friends to her "with hoops of steel." Another one of the specials in the Departments of Bible and Education. Has much of Gratiano's world wisdom, and will invite old wrinkles with mirth and laughter.

HUBERT McRAE RATCLIFFE

McFarland, N. C.

Trinity Park School. Class President (2); Inter-Society Debate (1); Sophomore Debate, Varsity Debates, Trinity-Swarthmore (3); Trinity-South Carolina (3, 4); Chanticleer Board (3); Chronicle Board (3, 4); Manager Varsity Track Team (3, 4); Class Basketball (1, 2, 3, 4); Class Baseball (1, 2, 3); Class Relay (2, 3, 4); Captain (3); Secretary Hesperian Literary Society (2); Chairman Ex-Com. (3); Vice-President (4); President (4); Y. M. C. A. Cabinet (3); Vice-President T. P. S. Club (4); President Greater Trinity Club (4); Sigma Chi.

Stands by his class in all its endeavors, but has found time to serve the college in three intercollegiate and for two years as manager of first Varsity Track team. A steady worker, popular, able and oftentimes amusing; under all a sincere friend to those so favored. Full of sound common sense.

JUNIUS HARRIS ROSE

Franklinton, N. C.

Warrenton High School. Freshman and Sophomore Honors; Assistant Business Manager Chronicle (3); Business Manager Chanticleer (4); Class Baseball (1, 2, 3); Scrub Baseball (1); Varsity Baseball Team (3); Chairman Ex-Com-Columbian Literary Society (2); Chief Tribunal (4); Commencement Marshal (2); Y. M. C. A.; Warrenton High School Club; "Tombs;" "9019;" Sigma Chi.

"June." Characterized by good managerial ability, great enthusiasm, and steady work. Generally on the job, but sometimes distracted by necessity of defending policies of College Book-rooms and boarding-houses. Clean, Roman features, indicative of principal traits. Has had man's job nursing the financial end of this publication. Delights in athletics and won a "T" by hard, consistent work.

BAXTER BOONE SLAUGHTER

Burlington, N. C.

Jefferson Academy. Social Debate (1); Inter-Class Debate (2); Censor Columbian Literary Society (2); Ex-Com. (1, 2); Commencement Marshal (1, 2); President Ministerial Band (2); Y. M. C. A.; Classical Club.

"B. B." "Buck." Generally satisfied with attention to personal affairs, yet always ready to respond to calls made on him. We believe he is admirably fitted to succeed in the ministry. Will do his duty, wherever it may fall.

JOHN PETER WYNN

ENFIELD, N. C.

Enfield High School. Sophomore Honors. Class Baseball Team (3); Tribunal Columbian Literary Society (3); Ex-Com. (3); Vice President (4); Y. M. C. A.; Classical Club; "9019;" Teacher West Durham High School (4).

"John Peter." Has got what he has by hard work, and never wastes time on foolish pastimes so generally attractive to undergraduates. Retires early and rises correspondingly, to contemplate with supreme self-satisfaction his sleeping fellow-students.

WESTER GHIO SUITER

GARYSBURG, N. C.

Weldon High School. Class Vice-President (2); Freshman Honors; Secretary Chautauque Board (4); Staff (4); Commencement Marshal (1); College Marshal (2, 3, 4); Columbian Literary Society; Secretary Y. M. C. A. (2); President (3); Science Club; "Red Friar;" "Tombs;" "9019;" Kappa Sigma.

"Tommy." "Sweetest." "Suit'er." A student, a member of more organizations, than anyone else in college, and generally respected for clean straightforwardness. An excellent companion for young or old, and bears a wiser head than many of greater years. Respected as few others of the class by all its members.

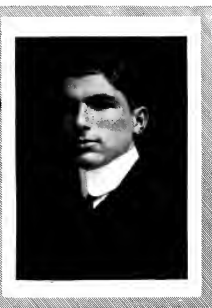

MARTIN LUTHER STUART

ROWLAND, N. C.

Centenary High School. Vice-President Columbian Literary Society (4); Secretary-Treasurer Robeson County Club (3).

"Luth." Does his work satisfactorily and mixes with his friends, with whom he is well supplied. Presides over nightly after-supper conclaves, and appears to get much enjoyment out of life. A loyal member of 1913.

HARDIN FRANKLIN TAYLOR
MOUNT AIRY, N. C.

Statesville Male Academy. Chanticleer Staff (4); Archive Staff (4); Class Track Team (4); Assistant in Biology (3, 4); President Science Club (4); Secretary Botanical Club (4); Fortnightly Club; Principal Qualla Graded School ('09-'10); Friendship High School ('11-'12); Scientific Assistant U. S. Bureau of Fisheries ('11-'12).

"Doc," "Stitch." Original, even brilliant. Figures out own schemes, even to art, which has most largely contributed to this book. Efficient scientist and good writer, as Top. C. Turvey abundantly testifies. Has figured art of choosing, riding gray, and similar practices, down to a fine point, and profits largely thereby. Works hard and enjoys life.

FRED WILLIAM TERRELL
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Weaver School and Rutherford College. Ex-Com. Hesperian Literary Society (3, 4); Science Club; Sigma Chi.

"Doc," "Solomon." Serves as last warning to late breakfasters; when he has passed there is no further chance. Author of profound essay, "The Velocities of Moving Bodies," to composition of which he brought sound experience. Has a good head, and if sufficiently moved can do good work; the trouble lies in getting the machinery to start.

JOHN McCRAY THOMPSON
WILMINGTON, N. C.

Fayetteville High School. Secretary Athletic Council (4); Chanticleer Board (4); Class Basket-ball team (3, 4); Class Track Team (3, 4); Varsity Baseball team (1, 2, 3, 4); Captain Varsity Baseball (3); Hesperian Literary Society; Commencement Marshal (1, 2); Y. M. C. A.; "Tombs;" Sigma Chi.

"Tommye," "Bull." Many a man will carry away as his strongest memories of college the sight of Tommye at the bat, slashing out those famous doubles and triples. A splendid heart, and plenty of sense under a sometimes rough coating. Can do good class work as occasion demands.

NETTIE SUE TILLET

DURHAM, N. C.

Durham High School. Freshman, Sophomore Honors; Junior Scholarship; Secretary Athena Literary Society (4); Sophomore Debate; Archive Staff (4); Chanticleer Staff (4); Durham High School Club. "Freckles." Has a great deal of executive ability and her opinions have much weight among the co-eds. Good student, and has been unselfish in imparting her knowledge to struggling freshmen and sophomores. Aside from making an enviable record in scholarship, she has, in her gentle, unassuming way, won the friendship of all who know her. Also somewhat of a literateur.—(E. F.)

PHILIP B. TRIGG

CORYDON, KY.

Kentucky State University, Kentucky Wesleyan College, Columbian Literary Society; Glee Club (4); Y. M. C. A. Cabinet (4); Kappa Alpha.

Has been with us only one year; following are some of his attainments elsewhere: Captain Class Basketball Team, Secretary Y. M. C. A.; President Athletic Association and Literary Society; Varsity Football Team; Gold Medal as best all-round student; Industrial Secretary Kentucky State Y. M. C. A. From these we judge that only need of longer residence is needed to make him a power here, although he has made himself distinctly felt in the one year.

ROBERT LESLIE TOWE

ROANOKE RAPIDS, N. C.

Elizabeth City High School. Freshman, Sophomore Honors; Junior Scholarship, Class Track Team (2, 3, 4); Secretary Hesperian Literary Society (2); Vice-President Historical Society (4); Y. M. C. A.; "9019"; Sigma Chi.

"Terry." Alternate seriousness and fun in fitting proportion. "A genuine lover of history," and always up on any job assigned him. Stresses scholarship and has made conquests in this field. Not daunted by size, and usually seen in neighborhood of J. Thompson, or vice versa. Sincere, and pronounced in likes and dislikes.

GEORGE ANDREW WARLICK
NEWTON, N. C.

Trinity Park School. Sophomore Debate; Archive Staff (4); Chanticleer Board (3); Class Basketball Team (1, 2, 3, 4); Captain (4); Class Baseball Team (1, 2, 3); Captain (3); Scrub Baseball (1, 2, 3); Class Relay Team (2, 3, 4); Manager Varsity Baseball team (4); Ex-Com. Hesperian Literary Society (2); Critic (3); Chaplain (4); Vice-President (4); Fortnightly Club; Pan-Hellenic Council (4); Trinity Park School Club; "Tombs;" Pi Kappa Alpha.

"Andy," "A." Member athletic trust. Appears to be able to do anything he tries his hand at, and has given it frequent trials. Given to remarks at expense of both friend and foe alike, but frank in his avowal of either. Possessed of a bright mind and a good flow of language—in his own parlance, he has a good line.

BESS LUCRETIA
WEIDENHOUSE
LENOIR, N. C.

Davenport College. President Athena Literary Society (4); Critic (4); Treasurer La Societe Francaise (4).

"Fritz," "Mutt." Davenport sent us this maiden, "divinely tall and most divinely fair." Has been with us only two years, but within that time all co-eds have learned the value of her wise and kindly advice, and consult it on all momentous occasions. Frequently a delegate for them in matters of business involving specimens of the opposite sex, over which she has a wonderful effect, often very advantageous. Splendid combination of "nods and becks and wreathed smiles," a cheery disposition, but withal an impressive dignity. Has won a host of admirers.

CLARENCE TAYLOR
WAGGONER

LYNCHBURG, TENN.

Chatham Training School. Class Baseball team (1); Hesperian Literary Society; Tennessee Club; Y. M. C. A.

"Dutch," "Scratch," "Honus," "Wag." Greatest recreation is pitching, from which he gets much enjoyment. Has been working for these four years and has gone the even tenor of his way broken only by weekly trips to Hesperian Society.

HENRY LINDSAY WILSON

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Winston High School. President Senior Class. Sophomore Honors; Chanticleer Board (3); Assistant Business Manager (3); Ex-Com. Hesperian Literary Society (3); Assistant to Treasurer (3, 4); Commencement Marshal (1, 2); Corresponding Secretary Greater Trinity Club (3); Y. M. C. A.; Fortnightly Club; "Red Friar"; "Tombs;" "9019;" Alpha Tau Omega.

"Ike," "Athlete," "Ping." Member of many organizations and popular in all because of sterling worth. Speculative, but not hurt by honest doubts. Has fund of dry humor and delights to break off his points in hapless victims. A solid student, good companion, and does well to tie up to. Hard worker.

CALEB WAYLAND WHITE

HARTFORD, N. C.

Trinity Park School. Class Baseball Team (1, 2); Captain (2); Class basketball (1, 2, 3, 4); Captain (3); Class Tennis (1, 2, 3, 4); Varsity Baseball (3); Varsity Basketball (3, 4); Assistant to Registrar (2, 3, 4); Glee Club (1, 2, 3); Pan-Hellenic Council (3); "Tombs;" Kappa Sigma.

"Bird," "Gravy Rider," "Shylock," "Buddie." Good all-round athlete, finally coming to his own as Senior Basketball star, after long, hard work. Deserves his "T." Usually makes his presence known by word of mouth. Full of life and spirits and gets off his work. Restless, active, attractive.

NEWMAN IVEY WHITE

STATESVILLE, N. C.

Greensboro High School. Freshman Honors. Fortnightly Club Literary Prize (3); Sophomore Debate, Assistant Editor Chanticleer (3); Editor-in-Chief Chanticleer (4); Class Tennis (1); Tournament Champion and Captain Varsity Tennis Team (3, 4); Manager (3); Class Baseball Team (1, 2, 3); Scrub Baseball (1, 2); Class Basketball (4); Class Relay (2, 4); Assistant in Latin (4); Assistant in English (4); Assistant Librarian (3); Secretary-Treasurer Tennis Association (3); Secretary Classical Club (3); Treasurer Fortnightly Club (4); "9019."

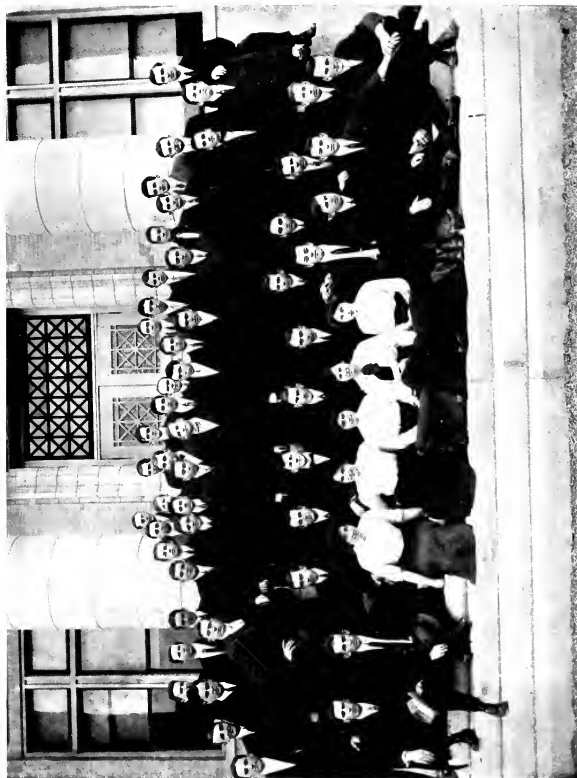

"N." A man of varied talents, athlete, writer, editor, one of the brightest of the many stars of 1913. Great on figuring, both on questionable and creditable propositions. Has figured out the creditable parts of this volume, and also a method of blaming the poorer parts on assistants. A poet of note, a terror of a tennis player, and an appreciative hearer of all things humorous and esthetic, queer as the combination often may be. Man of many interests and faithful to all. Ambition is to teach English, for which he is abundantly fitted.

History of Literary Societies

In the beginning of their respective careers in the college, the literary societies occupied the most prominent place in the realm of student activities. In fact, for many years they were practically the only student interests, outside of athletics, and in those days every man in college belonged to one or the other of them. In later years this has not been so generally the case, yet a larger number of students hold membership and do active work in the societies than in any other phase of student endeavor. Consequently, literary society history is peculiarly interesting. Brief sketches of the societies are as follows:

The Columbian Literary Society was organized in 1846, eight years after the founding of Union Institute, and five years before the name was changed to Trinity College. The Society has had a steady growth, and numbers among its members some of the State's most prominent politicians, educators, writers, and professional men. One of its members has written of it: "The tone of the society has been steady, quiet and dignified. It has always stood on plain, hard work and honest service. It has striven to develop all that is best in its members in every way. Its policy has been to give a fair and equal chance to all, making every member feel welcome, and rewarding fair and earnest service, regardless of all things else."

The Hesperian Society was founded June 26, 1851, simultaneously with the granting of the charter to Trinity College. Since that time it has had a successful life in the college. Its members point with pride to their society record in debating contests of all kind. It, too, has a distinguished list of alumni, representing it in all the walks of life, and a large representation in the college faculty. It says to new men: "One thing understand—if you join the Hesperian Literary Society we will do our utmost to assist you as a brother in developing and improving the talent for literary ability you possess; if you join our sister society, we still bid you Godspeed as a friendly rival, but in a rivalry which exists entirely on the surface—a rivalry in building up and not in tearing down." One result of the work of these two societies is the Trinity Chronicle, supported jointly by the two organizations and reflecting much credit to its supporters.

The last addition to the literary society family is the Athena Society, an organization of the women of Trinity College. Its organization was perfected January 8, 1912. In the year or more of its existence it has had about ninety members, and at commencement of its first year succeeded in forming an alumnae association that gives promise of much good. The Athena seems to have passed the embryonic stage and to be a successful fixture.

History of Greek Letter Orders

The college fraternities, with a total membership of over one hundred, play a large part in certain phases of college life. Corresponding with the gradual development of the college, and the consequent opening up of further opportunities, new fraternities have entered the field and established chapters in the college.

Alpha Tau Omega first put in its North Carolina chapter in 1872. In 1873, Eta Prime of Kappa Sigma entered, and was followed in 1901 by Kappa Alpha, with its Alpha Tau chapter. In the same year, Pi Kappa Alpha put in its Alpha Alpha chapter. The North Carolina Gamma chapter of Sigma Phi Epsilon entered in 1909, and in 1912, Sigma Chi made the last addition by establishing its Beta Lambda chapter.

The sororities of the college, two in number, took the place of local orders. Omicron chapter of Alpha Delta Phi came in 1911, and Sigma Delta of Kappa Delta was established in 1912.

Besides the mere fact of their presence and membership, little can be put into such a history—the Greek letter orders stand or fall by themselves.

To Old K. A.

TUNE—Watch On the Rhine

The day is done, the afterglow
That paints the heavens seems to show
How dear to God our colors bold,
Who flaunts the crimson and the gold.

Chorus

Then gather 'round, ye brothers all,
In every well-loved Chapter Hall,
And fill your glasses high at close of day;
Raise your stein, and clink with mine
To old K. A.

Then let our thoughts in fancy rove
To sunny Southern girls we love;
Then lift our glasses as we stand
And drink to grand old Dixie Land.

Chorus

To every brother lift our song,
May days be bright and life be long;
And may his heart beat true for aye
To guard the honor of K. A.

Hail to thee, O Kappa Sigma!
Hail the Scarlet, Green and White
With its many wondrous teachings,
With its jewels gleaming bright!
As the European order
Flourished near and far,
May we modern Kappas ever
With our Crescent and our Star.

Hail to thee, O Kappa Sigma!
Hold our willing fealty.
May "Bononia Docet" guide us
E'er in faith and loyalty,
Raise aloft on high our standard,
On caressing winds unfurled;
May our banner wave forever
'Cross the guerdons of the world!

To Pi Kappa Alpha

O come, let us sing from the depths of our souls,
To Pi Kappa Alpha our deepest devotion,
Till borne on the winds, as the thunder-peal rolls,
Its glad notes shall echo from ocean to ocean.
Firm champion of truth, and guardian of youth,
Of thy towering greatness thy manhood gives proof.
All hail, noble order, beloved of old!
Long wave thy bright colors, pure Garnet and Gold!

Enrolled as thy knights, with thy banner above,
We are constantly arising by manly endeavor,
To the heights of thy ideals, true friendship and love,
Which never can die, but live on forever.
So through all the days, over life's toilsome ways,
The light of thy friendship shines clear through the haze.
What a wreath of real meaning thy emblem imparts—
The Shield and the Diamond worn over our hearts!

What is this that we hear over valley and plain?
A sound of sweet voices in harmony ringing,
'Tis the chorus of sisters in joyful refrain,
The deeds and the praises of gallant knights singing.
As we look up on high to the great Father Pi,
That glorious ensign appears in the sky.
May it blended in beauty with "Old Glory" wave
"O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!"

Hail to the blue and gold ;

 Hail, brothers, hail !
The cross of Sigma Chi,
Our emblem lift on high,
To float 'neath freedom's sky

 The white cross glows

Eternal sunshine falls,

Secret Societies

Sketch of Secret Societies

The "9019" is the oldest of the secret societies at Trinity, having been founded in 1890. It is an honor society for the promotion of scholarship and the fostering of true interest in the welfare of the college. Members are initiated only from the upper classes.

The "9019" founded the South Atlantic Quarterly, and has charge of the annual civic celebration on Washington's birthday. In recent years it has twice promoted State inter-scholastic declamation contests. The society at present awards scholarship prizes of books in a number of high schools.

The "Tombs" is a secret organization of the junior class, whose purpose is the promotion of student activities and interest. It was founded in 1903 and has since originated several unique features of student life. At present it gives a cup to the winning class in the annual field day meet.

The "Red Friars" organization was founded in 1913 by members of the Senior class, with the intention of promoting a closer social spirit in the college community.

HISTORICAL DOCUMENTS IN HISTORICAL SOCIETY COLLECTION

Trinity College Historical Society

The aims of this organization are to collect and preserve manuscripts, books, pamphlets, newspapers, and relics that recall the past or are of value in writing history; to encourage the spirit of investigation among its members; and to publish papers, books, and documents of permanent value.

In the Library Building are a museum and a vault for exhibiting and preserving the treasures of the society. Here are to be found many rare volumes of North Carolina newspapers, the first editions of Lawson's History (1709), Brickell's Natural History (1738), the Laws of 1752, and hundreds of pamphlets. There are also over 5,000 manuscripts, a few of which are reproduced on the preceding and following pages.

Of the relics, a piece of the flag of Columbus is the oldest; next is the medal struck by the Pope in 1572 in commemoration of the Massacre of St. Bartholomew. The ink-stand and a metallic jug handle of General Stephen H. Moore illustrate forgotten customs; a knife taken from the grave of Patrick Ferguson recalls King's Mountain. Most suggestive of all are the table and the bottle used by Generals Sherman and Johnston in drawing up terms of surrender at the Bennett House, four miles west of Durham.

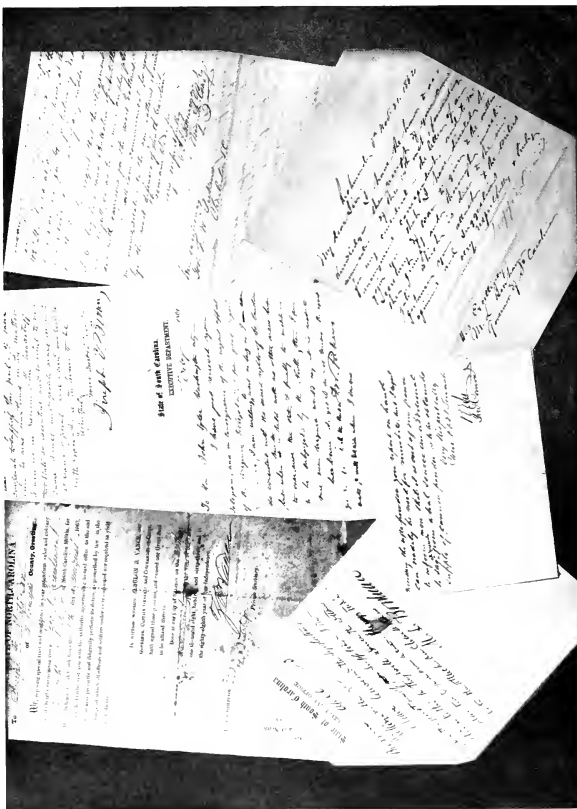

In 1897 this society began the publication of the Historical Papers; in 1910 the John Lawson Monographs were established as the means of publishing books. Nine series of the Historical Papers have been issued. Volume I of the John Lawson Monographs is the Autobiography of Brantley York; volume II is the Memoirs of W. W. Holden.

TENNIS

OW BAGLEY

'The Season

The tennis season of 1912-13 was doubly successful. Besides being wholly pleasing to its followers in the matter of scores, the tennis team also served partially to re-establish athletic relations with the University of this State.

The varsity tournaments began about the first of October and lasted two weeks before the team was picked. Siler, McKinnon, C. White, Few, and McClees all played strong games, but these were finally eliminated, leaving N. I. White and A. R. Anderson to compose the team, and R. B. Anderson for the position of alternate.

After a brief practice, White and Anderson met the strong Guilford team, on the home courts. The Trinity team won all three matches of this meet, but the sets were more closely contested than the score would indicate, and on the whole, some skilful tennis was displayed. In the return meet held at Guilford our team was victorious, but not by a clean score, for Anderson lost to his opponent after a long, hard battle. But this was quite satisfactory, as it gave Trinity five out of the six matches.

A good bit of practice followed before the team went over to Chapel Hill for their next meet. But here they were pitted against some worthy opponents, and deserve credit for the close sets they played, even though Carolina won the meet. White lost to his man after winning the first set, and Anderson lost in another close battle. The sets in doubles stood "two all," when darkness ended the contest.

The season which had begun so auspiciously for Trinity ended abruptly at this time by the resignation of Manager Carter, who decided to leave college in order to take a business course. But for this unfortunate circumstance, the team, in all probability, would have added other scalps to their belt.

TENNIS TEAM

E. M. CARTER
Manager

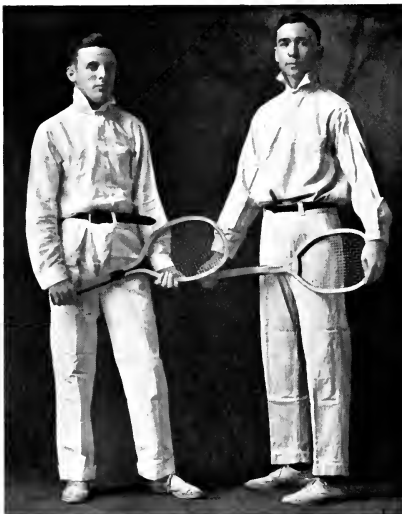

N. I. WHITE
Captain

Personal Mention

N. I. White, the captain of the team, did not let the duties of the captaincy affect his playing in the least, but lived up to the old idea that the captain should be the best man. White was an old man on the team this year, having won his letter in tennis last season. He used this experience to advantage, especially in doubles, where his partner was a new man and needed the steady influence of a veteran. He lost only one match during the entire season, and this was by a close score; while he won the rest with comparative ease. An idea of his superiority to the rest of the squad may be gained from the fact that he did not lose a single set during the whole tournament. His greatest effectiveness lies in his ability to hit the ball where he isn't looking.

A. R. Anderson, while a new man on the team, was not by any means a new man at the game. He played on the Freshman team last year, but this season he showed marked improvement and rightly deserved a place on the team. That he played a strong, consistent game can be seen from his score against Guilford, when he allowed his opponent only two games in the match. Although not as successful as White in the matter of scores, with proportional development he should make a very valuable man next year. He was stronger in doubles than in singles, which fact accounts for Trinity not losing a single match in doubles.

R. B. Anderson, who was again chosen for the position of alternate, could doubtless have effectively filled the place of either of his team-mates had he been called upon to do so. As it was, he took no active part in the playing season, but his work in the tournament seemed to give promise of a varsity position next year. He has a good serve, and is an excellent back court shot. Most of the credit for the victory of his class team in 1911 and 1912 was due to his versatile tactics.

R. B. ANDERSON

C. R. BAGLEY

Class Champions, 1911-12

On account of the fact that it was already late when the varsity tournament ended, the class tournaments were not played this year. This left Anderson and Bagley as class champions again. Although the other classes had strong teams, it is probable that the result would have been the same, had the classes again contested for the championship.

RECORD AGAINST OTHER CLASSES

1914 vs. 1913—Score: 6-4, 3-6, 7-5.

1914 vs. 1915—Score: 6-4, 6-3.

BASKETBALL

Personal Mention

This was Rand's second year as manager of the basket-ball team, and while he was good last season, he was even better this year. At the expense of no little time, labor, and worry, he prepared an extensive schedule, which included one trip through the State, another through Virginia and Washington, and several good games on the home floor. The team played about twenty games and had a few cancelled, thus showing the results of the manager's efforts as compared with those of the baseball manager, whose schedule called for about twenty-eight games in all.

For the first time in the history of basket-ball, Trinity had a regular coach this year in the person of an old student, J. E. Brinn, better known in basket-ball circles as "Big Jennie." And he is as good as his name, even in the eastern part of the State, where he spends the summer in training on the farm. The team has shown the effects of his coaching, too. Although prospects were not unusually bright at the beginning of the season, he has turned out a team equal to any of its weight which Trinity has sent out in recent years.

In 1912-13, "Little Jennie" served his third term on the team, and held the position of captain for the second time. He went from his regular position at forward to fill the place at guard, left vacant by Hedrick, of Columbus fame, and he filled it to the satisfaction of both his team-mates and the spectators. Besides his playing ability, his presence in the game materially affected the playing of the whole team. This was very noticeable in the first Durham Y. M. C. A. game, when his presence was greatly missed. His guarding was excellent, and in addition to this he nearly always scored more goals than his forward. During the entire season of nineteen games, he allowed only 16 field goals, while he scored 31 himself.

Beal Siler, at forward, filled admirably the place left vacant by "Sally" Crowell's failure to return this year. His playing was of the grandstand order, but it also looked good to the Trinity scorekeeper. As captain of the champion Sophomore team, he looked good from the start, and Coach Brinn did not make any mistake when he picked him for forward. He is a hard worker and keeps pegging away, no matter what happens. It takes a good guard to keep him out of the limelight. He has an effective overhand shot, is good at passing, and doesn't mind rough playing. His record has been a good one.

Cherry again filled his old position at center, and showed improvement over last year's playing. While his style of playing did not meet the approval of some, it at least kept the games from developing into cross tag. More than once his opponent realized that he was up against a hard farmer as well as a basket-ball player. Cherry has a tendency to leave his man, but this defect was more than offset by his own ability to cage the ball. Excepting the Washington and Lee game, he threw about as many goals as his opponents, and was at home when the other side wanted to rough it up.

Shag Thorne was the find of the season. While a member of the Freshman team last year he played a good game, but gave no evidences of such a brilliant season ahead. This year he developed from the start, was instrumental in the victory of the Sophomores, and landed a place on the varsity as one of the best guards seen at Trinity for some time. Thorne made an excellent running mate for Captain Brinn, and more than one game has been featured by their defensive work. It was a rare thing for his forward to throw over three goals in a game.

Caleb W. White, better known as C. White, held the other forward position, and he played it for all there was in it. He is an exceptionally fast man in getting down the field, passes accurately and is a good goal shot. His chief virtue lies in the fact that he has never been known to lose his temper, nor hold any malice against the referee. White is not a new man in the game by any means, as he won his letter in basket-ball last season, and has been a member of the squad during all four years of his college course. He has scored his full share of field goals in the twenty games of the season.

Paul Neal played center for the Freshman team last year, and showed such marked improvement in the class series this year that Coach Brinn picked him for the position of sub-center on the varsity. Neal is the biggest man on the team, and uses his weight and height very well. He has played a good game whenever given the opportunity. This was noticeable at Charlotte, where he scored five field goals and won the game.

Wooten was a member of the fast Sophomore team of this year, and by excellent work in the class game series, he won a place as sub-guard, second only to the notables, Brinn and Thorne. He took part in several games during the past season, always giving a good account of himself.

McKinnon, the star forward of last year's champion class team, showed up well in practice this year, and was selected to sub for Siler and White. He took part in only a few games, but made good all his opportunities, especially in the first Durham Y. M. C. A. game, when he scored three goals on big "Jennie Brinn."

BASKET-BALL TEAM

The Season

Even before the last echoes of tennis had died away, the basket-ball season was in full swing. Practice began about the 10th of October. Three old men were out for the team: Brinn, Cherry, and White, Hedrick being ineligible by the four-year rule. These, together with the class stars of last year and the new material, made up a good squad of fifty men. Daily practice followed.

After the class teams were picked and put through a short practice, the class series of twelve games were played. These games were interesting to the spectators as well as serving the purpose of helping the coach to select the squad. It is singular to note that four men of the champion Sophomore class team were picked for the varsity: Siler, forward; Thorne, guard; Neal, sub-center; Wooten, sub-guard. White, Brinn and Cherry filled the other positions.

The first game was with the Durham Y. M. C. A. on their court, and was won by them, score 28-13. This was due to the lack of team work on the part of Trinity, owing to the absence of Captain Brinn. Soon after this game the team left for a week's trip through the State, Asheville, Charlotte and Wofford being played on successive days. Our team was successful in three of the five games played.

Practice was resumed immediately after the holidays, and it was not long before Trinity took sweet revenge for their first defeat by turning the tables on the local Y. M. C. A., 28-25. Elon was taken on next as a means of perfecting our team-work. The score, 46-12, does not show the complete walkover, as the second half was played mostly by our substitutes. Whatever of conceit our team may have gotten from this game was quickly dispelled when they met the husky Washington and Lee team after an all-night trip. Cherry said that the score in this game was 90-15. Next evening saw Trinity still in Lexington, this time pitted against V. M. I.; however, they gave a better account of themselves, the final score being 28-10. Hurrying on to Virginia, they reached Charlottesville by a delayed train, rushed on the floor, and although beaten, they left the impression that they had been there. At Georgetown, our team played their best game of the trip, losing after an uphill fight by the score of 31-22. While in Washington, our old enemy, Catholic University, again defeated us, this time in basket-ball, by the score of 55-27, and home our boys came.

Emory and Henry, of Virginia, after defeating all the other teams in this State, stopped over for a game, but went away without it. The score was 36-15, and that, too, after they had just beaten Wake Forest on their home floor. The following week the team, now encouraged once more, went over to Raleigh and took the best end of a football-basket-ball game against A. & M. Although the score was close and hard fought, 22-18, nothing but the best of feelings prevailed. We took great delight in beating Wake Forest in the next game by the overwhelming score of 25-10. They came over with Holden and company, Carolina's scalp hanging from their belts, and actually expecting to win, but they were doomed to go back to the forest without scoring a single field goal. The following week we played a return game at Wake Forest, winning by a close score of 16-15, and securing the distinction of being the only North Carolina team which ever defeated Wake Forest on their home floor. V. P. I. was next taken in without much exertion on our part, 23-16. The season ended in triumph for Trinity when our team overwhelmingly defeated A. & M. for the second time, by the score of 32-14. This ended the season, leaving Trinity champion of North and South Carolina.

The Season

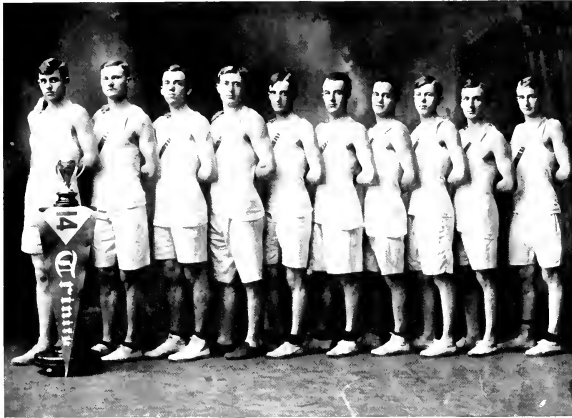

The season of 1911-12 witnessed Trinity's first attempt to put out a track team, and although the record of its members is not unusually good, some credit is due them for overcoming the inertia of the idea. To Dr. Frank C. Brown, the originator of the annual relay race, goes considerable credit for the establishment of the track team. Captain R. T. Lucas and Manager H. M. Ratcliffe deserve proportional share of praise for untiring efforts in behalf of the team.

The first part of the year saw the candidates, about sixty in number, training daily for the field day which was to be held in April. After a somewhat brief and irregular training, the teams representing the four undergraduate classes met in the Hanes Athletic Park for the annual field day, this time on the tenth of April. The fact that the class of 1914 won the cup with a margin of ten points over their nearest opponents, the Freshmen, is of little consequence. But the real good was derived from the great desire for track athletics which sprang up, as well as from the fact that it afforded a means of picking the varsity squad. The following men were chosen: Distance runners, R. L. Brown, T. H. Anderson and W. Ira Bost; for middle distance, Crowell, Whitesides, Cordle and Greene; for sprints and hurdles, Lucas, Sutton and Kanipe; high and broad jumps, Spence, Johnson and F. B. Brown; Siler and Barringer, weight throwers; Daniel Lane, pole vault. This team was chosen to represent the college in the meet at Raleigh. Although there were grunts of disapproval and criticism of the hard-working captain and manager, the team went down and managed to get back, bringing with them four perfectly good points which they had won while down there.

The infant Trinity track team left for Raleigh one fine April morning, bearing with them high hopes and good wishes of those left behind. The meet was scheduled to be held in the athletic park at A. & M. At 3:30 that evening the teams representing the University, Wake Forest, A. & M., Davidson, Trinity, Guilford and Elon, were ready for the fight. Our athletes may have been a little shaky perhaps, this being their first inter-collegiate meet, but then, too, they were pitted against the best in the State, and their record of four points is not so bad as it seems at first glance. In the first race, Lucas and Sutton were pitted against the final winners of the 100-yard dash, and accordingly failed to make places in the final heat. Anderson ran the mile against some class, but then he crossed the line ahead of the winner, if we omit the fact that he was a lap behind. Siler, however, won fourth place in the high hurdles, giving Trinity her first point. Kanipe, the tall Freshman, won his heat in the preliminaries and added another point to our total by capturing fourth place in the finals of the 220-yard dash. "Bo-Peep" Barringer was also in the limelight. Although he had worked four hard years on the basket-ball court in vain, he now came forward in the shot-put and added two other points to his team, which was already the proud possessor of two. This ended the meet as far as Trinity was concerned.

A Short Account of the Relay Race

The preliminary races were held on the Circle, and were featured by the work of Barrett, of the Freshmen, R. L. Brown, of the Sophomores, and F. F. Thomson, of the Juniors, whose respective records for the mile were: 5:20, 5:21, and 5:27.

The regular race, as usual, began out in the country and ended at the flag pole, after two laps of the track had been circled. The Juniors, who proved to be the final winners, got a rather poor start, but took the lead in the fourth mile by Whiteside's great run, losing it on the very next mile, however, to the Sophomores, who held it up to the ninth course. The Juniors were put in striking distance of the leaders by Secrest, who overcame an overwhelming lead held by the Sophomores at the beginning of the ninth mile. He handed the note to Cordle, a scarce twenty-five yards behind Downey, of the Sophomores, who had already romped away for the final lap. The end was spectacular. Cordle, judging his reserve to a nicety, passed Downey in the last few rods and won the race by a scant ten yards. This is the second time that the class of 1914 has won the annual relay.

Gymnasium Exhibition

Cap. Card and a picked team of his best gymnasts gave a public exhibition in the Angier Duke Gymnasium one night last fall. This was the first gymnastic exhibition which had been held at this college for some time, and naturally a large crowd was on hand to witness the novel performance of the acrobats. As this was the only chance which presented itself for the men to display their prowess along this line, it was made a gala occasion, and one which was enjoyed very much by the goodly throng which had gathered to see the results of Director Card's instruction.

The work was creditable, some men being very proficient on the horizontal and parallel bars and also on the flying rings and the mat. Cooke, Spence and Boyd showed up well for the college, while White, a student at the Park School, proved himself an adept at almost every stunt. Boyd and Downey pulled off a skilful bout with the foils, and Director W. W. Card gave a clever exhibition with Indian clubs. McLean and Cobbs vied with each other in a couple of freak races, both of which were won by the former.

The most amusing part of the program was rendered by four Seniors, who, forgetting the dignity of their position, acted the part of clowns for the amusement of the assembled public. Thompson, Knott, Marr and Ratcliffe, with their painted faces and outlandish costumes, filled the intermissions with their comic stunts. Monk Knott, who later accompanied the Glee Club in the capacity of a reader and jester, easily carried off the laurels in this lighter line.

The performance was free to the public, who took advantage of this fact to attend in large numbers. The program was of suitable length and well rendered. Director Card deserves credit for the excellent showing of his team.

BASEBALL TEAM, 1912

Baseball Season

A detailed review of the baseball season of 1912 is unnecessary. To those who were here and witnessed it, enough has been said, but to those who saw only reports, let us say that it was hard luck. At the very outset of the season, the team was greatly handicapped by the loss of Captain "Willie" Bundy, who was ruled off under the conditions of the S. I. A. A. Although he was succeeded by an able man and player, yet a gap was left at third which was never satisfactorily filled.

Practice began as usual, about the first of February, and a large squad reported for practice. But these were mostly new men, and herein lies the reason for Trinity's poor showing. No team can hope to win with recruits playing against veterans, and this was the case at Trinity during the season of 1912. When the squad was picked, it was evident that there was a dearth of good pitchers—Ivey had recently undergone an operation for appendicitis, and Godfrey was pursued by his same weak back and hard luck. In spite of all these drawbacks, however, Trinity started out as usual by winning the first few games, and even made an equal showing with most of the Northern teams. As time passed, however, it was seen that our team was far below the standard. For the first time in the history of the two institutions, the Park School defeated the college, in a decidedly close game. On top of this, our old enemy, Wake Forest, took a couple of games, although we came back strong at Raleigh, defeating them in a game which they had confidently expected to win. After two games with the University of Georgia, one of which was a farce, the team left for the memorable Northern tour. The account of this trip was lost in Nero's fire; it suffices to say that we won three out of the six played on the road. This trip ended the season, as well as Manager Sheppard's worry and cares.

Personal Mention

"Tommy" Thompson, Trinity's prize stick artist, was a most suitable man to captain last year's team. Recognized as one of the best second-basemen in the State, he played his steady, consistent game. He was fast and sure in the field and at the top in hitting. "Tommy" has a most disconcerting habit of slouching up to the plate and casually meeting one on the nose for three bases. The scarcity of knots in the fence has robbed him of many a home-run. During the past three seasons he has proved an invaluable man on the diamond.

"Kid" Anderson, by his unlimited pep and consistent hitting and fielding, well deserves the place he won as All-Southern short-stop. Nothing pleases him better than to snatch one from "Tommy" after a dash across half the diamond. "Kid" is fast and has no fear of the error column as is shown by the amount of ground he covers and the difficult chances for which he is always looking. Having made the team in his Freshman year, he knows baseball thoroughly and will fill well his place as captain of this season's team.

"Runt" Foushee is little, but about as loud as the law will allow. Left field includes a rather large tract of land for a small man, but that never bothered "Runt." He seems too fast for his territory and insists on paying calls on his neighbor's flies. "Runt" is the first man up and consequently the first man on. If the pitcher will not walk him, he will get a hit. "Runt" loves the game as is shown by his peculiar habit of shaking his head and talking to the balls as they come over.

Spence is built for a center-fielder. He is a hundred-yard man and always manages to reach the spot where he is needed with time to spare. Whether it is to back up a play or make one on his own account, he is always on the job. He is great on going up after them, sometimes forgetting to come back down. Since he is a good infielder, as well as outfielder, and manages to get away with his share of the hits, he makes the team a good man.

"Shag" Thompson was the Freshman wonder of last year. Ask him what he plays and he will tell you "Baseball," and be about right about it. Put him in the field and he will eat up everything in sight. Tell him to go across the diamond and arrange himself behind the bat and he is equally at home. He is also a good hitter, and his overflow of pep keeps an uproar going resembling an orphan asylum.

"Dave" Fuller insisted that he did not mind displaying his limbs and consequently became a hard and consistent worker. He surprised his friends with his ability to land on the ball and started the season as one of the leaders with the willow. Dave is built rather high off the ground, but he is always able to reach low enough to scoop them up or soar high enough to flag them down. He makes it the rule to let nothing get by first base.

"Cale" White is a hard worker and has developed into quite a valuable man. He circulates freely around third and generally manages to head off anything that starts that way. His weakness, however, lies in his love of glad tidings. Once, upon getting a hit, he stopped to publish the news and was thrown out at first.

"June" Rose is a steady worker and gives a man very little chance for a hit in right field. At the bat he also shines. Although he doesn't hit them every time, he at least displays a circular wind-up which is most graceful and pleasing, especially if he pauses long enough to rap out a neat single or lead the poor pitcher astray into giving four wide ones. "June" worked hard for his "T" and won it.

"Tubby" McClain has a remarkable command of English. He loves to broaden out behind the plate, paw the dirt like a restless horse, and speak in endearing terms to the luckless batter. "Tubby" hits them occasionally and then the circus begins. To see the brave lad lay back his ears and stretch out for first is worth the price of any game. But "Tubby" is no joke. Though countless men romp home, he never loses that dignity which always characterizes his portly form.

"Colt" Godfrey knows how to mix them up. He does not loaf, but goes into a game with a jump which pep up the team and gives the winning spirit. He is great on bluffing and pulling off trick plays. It was largely due to this head work of his that he was our first pitcher for the season. Even at the plate he puts up a good show. Although his hits are rather scattered, he strikes a pose that quite often gives him a free ride to first.

"Dina" Kanipe, otherwise known as The Village Blacksmith, was one of the season's finds. Nobody thought that old "Dina," with his chorus girl windup, was really a pitcher, but he was put in to fill out. By the time he had pitched through a game or two, however, the consensus of opinion changed and Snipe was hailed as one of our mainstays. He has steam, plenty of it, and knows how to use his head. And, too, he doesn't mind slamming out one occasionally just to show a little two-twenty form.

W. R. Ivey opened up his varsity career when he had been out of the hospital only six weeks, but this did not seem to affect him, judging from the high grade of ball he pitched. "Doc" was a spitball artist, and this, together with his steam, made him a formidable player to serve in the capacity of second pitcher during the season of 1912. His most notable performance perhaps came in the Guilford game at Greensboro, when he relieved Godfrey with men on bases, and held the team hitless for the remaining four innings. He also has the distinction of winning two of the three games which our team won on the Northern trip.

"Bush" Boshamer has the tresses of a poet and the arm of a pitcher. He showed that he could pitch ball early in the season and failed to contradict himself later on. He won his games, that is, all but a few, and these could be easily explained by the great Bushwanger himself. All that "Bush" wanted was a tryout for his salary wing and he promised to do the rest. The beauty about it was that he generally did it.

The Men Who Made the Team

Dr. Merle T. Adkins coached the team for the fourth consecutive season, and did well with the material at hand. The fact that Trinity made a poor record is by no means an indication that Coach Adkins' services were not of the highest order. "Doc" hates to lose as bad as the lowliest rooter, and accordingly he exerts every effort of generalship to see the most runs on Trinity's side of the ledger. Besides being a professional baseball player and coach, Dr. Adkins is a gentleman, and has a good influence upon his squad in other things besides baseball.

John McCrary Thomson found that Bundy would not let the responsibility of the least, as his record of valuable player, batting usually cleaning the sacks, the "old ginge," that element winning of games. His field means, but it falls into the with his hitting. His most the first Amherst game, hits off Vernon, in the plate.

Sheppard was unfortunate in his team, but the team, on the other hand, was indeed fortunate in its manager. He served his apprenticeship as assistant manager during the preceding year, and was somewhat fitted for the strenuous task of being manager during the season of 1911-12. His schedule called for a total number of 28 games, 17 of which were played on the home grounds. This was indeed a good schedule, from the spectator's as well as the player's standpoint. Contrary to the usual custom, a Northern trip was arranged, which included Virginia, Maryland, and Washington, D. C. The team returned from the Northern trip on May 7th, where they closed the season in Richmond by defeating Randolph-Macon, 3-2, in a well-played game.

was elected to the position of the season, after it was he allowed to play. He did fact his batting average in .357 will show. Besides a fourth on the list, and habit-Tommy was always full of which goes far towards the ing was not poor by any background when compared notable performance was in when he hammered out four same number of trips to the

The Outlook for 1913

It is a conservative statement to say that the prospects are better this year than they have been since the days of "Big Bob" Gantt, the West brothers, "Tommy" Suiter and "Chat" Bivins. We not only have most of the old men back again, but also the best of last year's Park School team are out for practice. As the CHANTICLEER goes to press, there are about sixty men on the squad, of whom half are outfielders, and the other half are infielders and batteries. In Knight and Fitzgerald, we have two of the best college pitchers in the State, and with Godfrey and Kanipe showing their usual form, there should be no concern about the pitching staff. Maddox, of 1911 fame, McLean, of last year's varsity, and Bond, of the Yannigans, are out for the receiving position. For infielders there are John Thompson, of last year's varsity, "Captain Kid" Anderson, of three years' college experience, and White, of last year's team. In addition to these, there are a lot of other aspirants capering about the infield in practice, namely: North, Gill, Shore, Rone, Baird, Patterson, Siler and Carver. In the outfield there are Spence, of last year's team, and Litchfield, of Park School fame. There are also numbers of new men too numerous to mention trying for some position in the outfield.

The withdrawal from the S. I. A. A., whether or not a good step from every standpoint, certainly eliminates many of the conditions which have defeated Trinity in the past.

With the diamond in good shape, and Doc. Adkins once more on the job, we pray for good weather and look forward to a banner year in baseball.

(SONGS AND YELLS)

(To the tune of Summer Time)

Trinity! Trinity!
How we love her banner, her banner;
Trinity! Trinity!
We her name will sing;
Trinity! Trinity!
Here's to the flag she flies,
Yes, boys, in glory we'll sing the same old story
Of old Trinity.

(To the tune of Bonnie Blue Flag)

We'll gather on the campus,
And sing of Trinity.
In all this world there is no spot
So sweet, so dear to me,
O Trinity! O Trinity!
To thee our voice we raise,
While loyal hearts and loyal lips
Unite to sing thy praise.

CHORUS

Hurrah! Hurrah! for Blue and White,
Hurrah!

Hurrah! for Old Trinity,
Her loyal sons we are.

First in the rank of scholars,
First in our statesmen, too;
In all this land, from sea to sea,
There's none more brave, more true,
O Trinity! O Trinity!
O joyful college days;
The glory of thy sons shall be,
Thy name to ever praise.

A Comic Tragedy of College Life

ARGUMENTUM

A play on the failure of success, in which live many characters familiar to us in daily life. Havoc is wrought through the near-sightedness of the faculty; O. T. is bribed; evil triumphs.

DRAMATIS PERSONÆ

Prex Notzomani, President of college.
D. W. Nuisance, Registrar of college.
Dr. Black, Professor of English.
E. Will Make'm, Professor of German.
Dr. Little Pepp, Professor of Greek.
Dr. Jeff Bates, Professor of Latin.
Prof. Mutt Hill, Professor of Latin.
Gink Forsooth, Professor of French.
Remorse, An allegorical character.

B. Eye Stanford, Dean of college.
Cap. Hard, Gymnasium director.
B. L. Wilson, Director of Athletic Association.
A. Jim Cutter, Conscientious student.
Doc. Merrill, A student, intellectually bright, but unscrupulous.
O. T., A parasite, and nocturnal curator of the campus.
Ghost of '98, A speaking spook.

ACT I

SCENE I. Faculty room. The day before commencement. Prex Notzomani has just called the meeting to order.

Prex Notz (Nervously fumbling at his handkerchief)—Gentlemen, we have before our attention a very serious matter; namely, that of passing upon the gymnasium absences of two young gentlemen. Their names are Merrill—

All—The good student.

Prex Notz (Continuing)—Yes, Merrill and Cutter. Tomorrow is commencement day, and upon the decision of this meeting rests their hope of graduation. As members of the faculty in this college, it behooves us to take immediate steps. Is there any discussion?

Dr. B. (Umph! Umph! Finally coughs nervously twice)—Mr. President, this idea of keeping a fine scholar from his degree merely by reason of a few absences from the gymnasium is all tommyrot, aw! there's nothing to it. The measure is too drastic; yes, entirely too drastic. (He snorts once and resumes his seat).

All (Confused murmur)—Surely, surely, we cannot hold him back on this account.

SCENE II. Same room. Enter Ghost of '98 and assume stand in front of Prex. Notzomani.

Ghost of '98 (In squeaking tones)—Alas, the good old days are no more. Back in '98 no one was graduated who was not a good athlete as well as a brilliant scholar. I fear that under the present administration the fine old college of my boyhood has lost its ancient dignity and prestige. (Vanishes).

The Gink (Forgetting to address the chair in his excitement)—We always listen to reason up there in Canada. And in addition to fishing in the summer, we are wont to take good advice, especially that given by such an engaging personality as the one we have just seen. Now, I wouldn't have you to think for a moment that I am superstitious, or that the people in Canada are, either, but I move that the gentlemen's absences be not excused.

B. I. Stan. (Rising cautiously, speaks in a soft voice)—Gentlemen, it would be well to look into this matter. He has a poor chapel record.

B. L. W. (Brusquely)—That there spook's right, accordin' to my way o' thinking.

Cap. Hard—You see, it's this way: A man needs a strong body as well as a bright mind. But down at my gym I give special exercises for the head also. Not that the spook has anything to do with my decision, but just because Merrill has been persistently cutting my gym. I second the motion of Prof. Forsooth. Why, when I was at Harvard, you know— (Called to order. He sits down).

(Vote taken; motion carried not to excuse absences of Doc. Merrill. Matter of Jim Cutter's absences taken up).

Præx Notz—Before passing upon the absences of Mr. A. J. Cutter, I wish to hear from the different departments of the college concerning the gentleman's record.

E. Will M.—Old Cutter's a pretty fair student. He made 99 on my German last year, but he doesn't work over six hours a day for me. If he would apply himself, he would be a good student.

Dr. Little P. (Rises hurriedly and begins in a timid manner)—Mr. President, I was expecting something like this. But in regard to Mr. Cutter (you know I mark mathematically correct, and do not give a good grade just because one happens to be a good fellow) I could give the gentleman only 80 11-47 on my Greek Literature. I think, however, that Socrates gave Alcibiades even less than that.

Dr. Jeff B.—Ha! ha! ha! The young gentleman seems to be 'in facultatis potestate,' but I am pleased to report that he does well on my Latin V. Yes, he has a good Ciceronian vocabulary, ha! ha! ha!

Prof. Mutt H.—Oh, Arthur, I'd hardly say that. I only gave him 84 on Catullus, and I'm sure that he could not tell today where the temple of Jupiter Stator stood.

Cap. Hard—I used to know this man's father when I played centre-field for old Trinity in '08. He was a fine fellow, and so is the boy for that matter. How my heart swelled with pride when he tipped his hat to me the other day with a cheerful 'Good evening, Professor.' I'm going to make all these fellows call me 'Professor' next year. He has been working hard of late and only has twenty absences now, which were caused by the fact that he spent most of his first three years to pay expenses. I move that he be allowed to make these up before tomorrow, at the rate of two per hour.

(Vote taken; motion carried).

Præx Notz—Before we part for the last time of this scholastic year, I wish to warn you that the glorious past and illustrious future of this institu-t-i-o-n (Typical Rooseveltian grin) rests upon your shoulders. (Another grin). Do not prove a false support.

ACT II

SCENE I. Gymnasium. That night. Enter Jim Cutter.

Jim Cutter (Soliloquy)—Let's see. I have twenty absences to make up; this means work until 4:30 in the morning. (Puts down watch and goes to work). By George! (Brilliant idea strikes him). I don't have to work, there's no one watching me. Why not take a nap on one of these mats! No, the faculty is just, they have allowed me this opportunity to graduate: so I'll play the man and work till dawn, if it kills me. After all, 'Honesty is the best policy,' just like Nero said. (Hearing a noise at the door). Who's there?

Merrill (Without)—It's Merrill, nobody but Doc. Merrill. I have come to work of my gym. absences also.

Cutter opens the door, Merrill enters with a suspicious looking projection on the hip, goes back to Cap Hard's office and takes down book of absences. Cutter resumes his work on the punching bag. . . . O. T., returning from the flower house, sees light in gymnasium and steals in the back door by means of his skeleton key and comes upon Merrill in the act of marking off his absences.

O. T.—I'll swear, Doc, I didn't know you'd do anything like that. Doc Maylor wouldn't even do such a thing. I'll report you to D. W. Nuisance in the morning.

Merrill—Look here, O. T., you don't have to report me; it would ruin me if you did. And by the way (Lowering his voice and gently tapping the bottle with his hand), I've got some good old corn here that came all the way from Bryson City. Forget about this and we will pull off a big one.

O. T.—That's right. I don't know what part of Africa that there place is in, but I likes that stuff good as anybody do. I don't have to report what I don't see, anyway, do I, Doc? (They go out. Merrill returns to his room, and O. T. rather unsteadily continues his rounds, muttering to himself) I'll just be durned if they won't have to put out that light up there in Willard's room.

SCENE II. Gymnasium.

Cutter—I'm so tired, I wonder what time it is. (Looks at his watch). Four o'clock. Only one more absence, and then I can take my diploma home to mother, and she will be proud of her son. The old world is not so bad, after all. How pretty it looks over in the east. Before another daybreak I will have my degree. I feel mighty weak. (Faints from the long exertion, trips on the scattered dumb clubs, head hitting iron shot, expires with fractured skull).

SCENE III. Merrill's room. Five o'clock. Merrill, unable to sleep, is talking feverishly to himself.

Merrill—What a fool I am; I neglected to replace the book where it belongs. What if it is found misplaced with my absences marked off. (Gets up, determined to go down and put it up. O. T. rushes in breathlessly.)

O. T.—Good G——! Doc, that there fool down yonder has killed himself. I found him just as I was fixing to cut off the lights and go home. They'll want to know how it came about, too, and what that broken bottle is doing there, and book lying open on the table.

Merrill (A light beaming on his cruel features)—Dead men tell no tales. I've got an idea; listen! (Whispers a few minutes.)

O. T.—That's right, we'll go over together and tell Mr. Nuisance just how it happened. That's the best we can do, ain't it, Doc?

ACT III

SCENE I. The college office. Nine o'clock. O. T. and Merrill reporting to Nuisance how the catastrophe happened.

Merrill—Cutter has been desperate for the last few days over the fact that he wouldn't be able to graduate on account of some twenty gym absences, and last night he came by my room intoxicated, on his way to the gym to mark off his absences. This is all I know.

O. T.—That's right.

D. Nuisance—Have you any idea how he met his death, Mr. Merrill?

Merrill (Glibly)—I am not sure, but I suppose that while drunk he took the insane notion of doing some stunt, and a disastrous fall resulted.

O. T.—That's right.

D. Nuisance (Jotting down the facts)—Thank you, Mr. Merrill.

SCENE II. Memorial Hall, graduating exercises going on. Diplomas have been presented, and honors are about to be awarded.

Pres. Notz—Young gentlemen, today you are going out to face the world. It is a cold world and will not take you by the hand merely because you have a diploma there. You will have to show them. But we, the faculty of this noble institution of learning, felicitate ourselves upon this excellent class of graduates. You can and you will show them. Under the leadership of your valedictorian, Mr. Merrill, an error regarding whose record we have happily corrected this morning, you will go forth to fight the battles of life, to make good your opportunities, that by and by you may reflect honor and glory on the college of your boyhood days. My blessings go with you. (Grins and changes handkerchief from one pocket to the other.)

Chorus of Co-eds:

"God, our Father, hear our voices,
Listen to our cry;
Bless the college of our boyhood,
May it never die!"

SCENE III. Merrill's room. Same night.

Merrill (Alone)—Now, I have played well my part.

Remorse—Yes, but young Jim Cutter lies dead, accused of your crime.

Merrill—I will go home in triumph, bearing my diploma and the valedictory.

Remorse—And kiss your pure, sweet, patient Mother with lips polluted by ignominious falsehood.

Merrill—I am proud of my success.

Remorse—Success, did you say? What is success? It is but the gilded side of failure. That which we have striven for, when attained no longer seems attractive.

Merrill—And I will tell father of my fine work and my record with the faculty.

Remorse—But what of the lie you have lived and the bluff you have run?

Merrill—Away, grim spirit, away, I say. Life is nothing but one huge bluff after all.

O. T. cuts off the lights.

THE END.

The Lights on the Heights

H. E. SPENCE

Oh, where are you hastening, children,
With your dear little tender feet?
 Will you leave your toys
 And your childish joys
And play-town's pleasant street?
Will you follow the gleam of the will-o'-wisp
 That the mountain heights enfold?
Oh, the lights on the heights are pretty,
 But the lights on the heights are cold.

Oh, whither youth and maiden,
Oh whither so fast away?
 Will you leave the gleams
 Of a lover's dreams
And the flowery fields of May?
Will climb to the end of the rainbow
 In search for the pot of gold?
Oh, the lights on the heights are brilliant,
 But the lights on the heights are cold.

Oh, weary of earth and careworn,
Will you go on the endless quest?
 Will you leave your home
 On the road to roam
That leads to the mountain's crest?
Fame's castle doors are bolted
 And open but to the bold:
Oh the lights on the heights are luring,
 But the lights on the heights are cold.

Oh, hard is the way and weary
That leads to the mountain-heights,
 And the way is strown
 With bleaching bone
Of many a gallant knight:
While the aged few that have reached the heights
 Will tell you as I have told,
That the lights on the heights are fickle,
 And the lights on the heights are cold.

A Letter

NEUESBURG, January 1, 3102.

TO KING THEODORE XXII.
Your Most Royal Highness:

Knowing your interest in science and in history, I am presuming to indite to you, the beloved Bull-Moose, King of America, this letter, wherein I shall record the results of the archeological work recently carried on at the ancient town of Durham.

As your Majesty knows, this town was overwhelmed by the eruption of Mount Dukemixturus in the twentieth century; and the site of it was not again discovered until 3006. In 3007 archeologists began digging in the vicinity of Durham, but they were stopped by the escape of the terrific fumes of a new gas which was called the "tobacciosus gas."

Last year, however, I decided to take up this work on my own account, and in order to escape those deadly gases I began my excavations at about a mile's distance from the town proper.

For a time it seemed that my efforts were to be in vain; but at length, after a month's hard work, one of my workmen struck something solid. I at once set all my men to work at that spot. Soon, under their hearty efforts, a large, double arch constructed of iron was unearthed. This had evidently served at one time as a gate. On it were inscribed the following letters: 'ERE-VDITIO RELIGIO. These words, as translated by Professor Benbig, the eminent authority on the earlier languages, mean: "Here died religion."

This inscription having aroused our enthusiasm to an extremely high pitch, Doctor Benbig and I renewed our work with increased interest, hoping to come across still further inscriptions which might throw light upon the ancient people of the twentieth century.

Our hope was not in vain. Not far from the gate-way we found a piece of paper, still well preserved by the volcanic ash, on which was inscribed: SHOOT A JIT. This phrase is rather hard to translate. The "jit" was a bird of the "dough" class, evidently. This "dough" class of birds is divided into the "jits," the "bits," and the "bucks." To "shoot a jit" meant to try to gain money, since the jit had a definite money value.

After a great deal more excavating, my workmen came upon a road-bed, which lay only a short distance from the gate just mentioned. This road clearly proves the theory of Professor L. Erned, who asserts that the people of the twentieth century wore steel shoes. This new-found road was made of sharp rocks of such size that none but steel shoes might walk on it and go unharmed.

But I will not detain you and disturb your Majesty's mind with these minor details any longer. I know that your Majesty is at heart inclined to love the study of beautiful languages, and so, without telling of our wonderful discoveries of fossilized people—of men in the garb of professors, but having stone heads—without telling of the finding of the many curious buildings and queer things; without doing this, I shall at once tell of the inspiring inscriptions which we found on the interior walls of a fossil building called in the old tongue, "The Inn."

The first inscription which Doctor Benbig and I found in this building was the following: RABBIT W—— PULLED ONE OFF ON US THIS AFTERNOON AND SHOT A QUIZ TO OUR SYSTEMS. It was only after considerable labor that we were able to deduce the meaning of this beautiful passage. Let us take it up in detail. The word "Rabbit" is evidently equivalent to the super-ancient Hebrew word "Rabbi," meaning doctor or professor. The next word, of which three letters are missing, is apparently the "Rabbit's" name. The phrase "pulled one off on us" is probably an euphemistic rendering of the old words for "undressed us." "Shot us a quiz," or "shot a quiz to our systems," means gave us a shower-bath. The entire reading then would be: "Rabbit W—— undressed us and gave us a shower-bath." How expressive! How euphemistic! How modest are those words!

The next inscription of any importance was this: DOCTOR B—— IS A HOT-AIR SPIELER. This inscription seems to have been an epitaph, meaning that Doctor B—— discoursed mellifluously upon various disconnected topics. "Hot-air spieler" is a term of affection frequently applied to professors.

Near this epitaph just spoken of was this: CHOCOLOTTIE, GOOD CONES WHOLE TIME. The meaning of this passage has not yet been correctly deciphered. The word "chocolottie" is an absolute mystery; "good cones" seems to imply a certain delicious and enjoyable coolness; but that is as far as the translators of the sentence have gone. The phrase "whole time" apparently means "eternally" or "everlasting," but we have as yet obtained no translation which will exactly explain it.

In what had evidently been a dining hall in this same old building my workmen found carved on a piece of glass with a diamond, the following: SHOOT THE BULL—EVERYBODY'S DOIN' IT! The meaning of "shoot the bull" is hard to determine, since it had so many applications; but in the present case Dr. Benbig and I decided that it must apply to etiquette, and must be an euphonious expression for "pass the meat." On investigation, we found that this expression had many variations, for example, "sling the hash," "toss the heifer," and "start the calf a'walking." The last phrase of the inscription is one often found but never fully explained or understood. "Everybody's doin' it!" But doing what? That is the question which remains unsolved! Professor Liebig is of the opinion that they were doing the turkey trot, as he is pleased to call it; but the professor does not take the trouble to explain just what the turkey trot is. Some light was thrown upon this subject, however, when one of our men discovered another inscription in the same building. This one read: I'M THE GUY THAT PUT THE TURK IN TURKEY! Professor Liebig is now at work on this clue, and hopes before long to be able to prove some of his previous assertions.

The most beautiful and impressive thing that we found was the following elegant phrase: DEAN HUNT—REARIN' to Go! What a model of terseness that is! What a picture is presented to the mind! How clearly one can see rising before him the dignified figure of a stately dean, striding along at a rapid, heroic pace, moving as swiftly and as gracefully as Apollo himself! Indeed, the language of these people was rich in descriptive powers and elegance of wording. What a model of good language is that description!

The last of our discoveries, Your Royal Highness, King Theodore, was the simple but expressive word "Scoop." It seems that this was a short way of expressing the thought that is contained in their more verbose expression: CUT THE COMEDY, which we also found. The meaning of these words is to "stop."

In view of these discoveries, may your majesty be now pleased to send out some of your court scientists to assist us in this great work.

Your most humble servant,

HUBERT JUNIPER.

Campus Singing

N. I. WHITE

The boys will be for melody tonight,
For every time the twilight witchery
Transforms yon huge, electric-lighted mill
Into a mystic olden battlement,
And every time the ball team wins a game,
And atmosphere is warm, and grass is dry,
And there are early stars for audience—
The boys will be for music.

Supper done,
They sprawl in careless fashion on the grass;
Some talk there is of profs and chorus shows,
And jokes both rank and innocent, and then
A silent session, till a veteran singer
Who prides himself in secret on his voice,
Suggests, "Let's have a little harmony,"
And so the campus chorus has the floor:

*We're tenting tonight on the old camp-ground,
In a perfect storm of tenor and of base;
Dinah don't you go down the Ohio,*

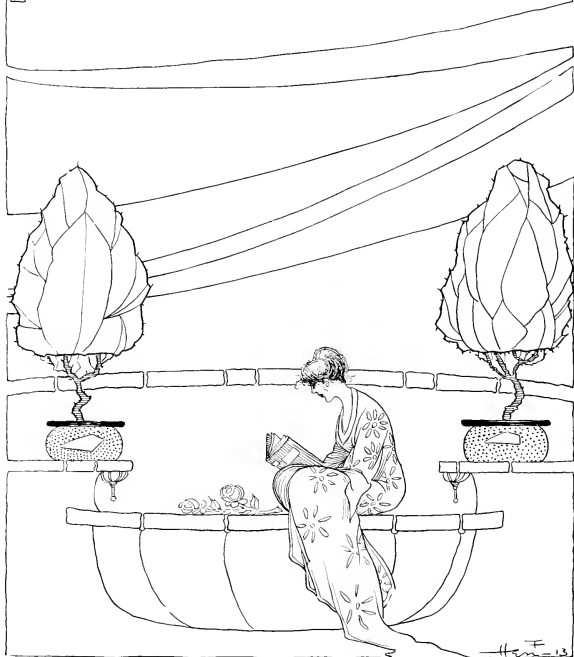

The lead is not progressive, and the tenor sets the pace.

*Meet me tonight in Dreamland;
Don't you hear the steamboat blow?
Carry me back to Old Virginia;
Down where the cotton blossoms grow.*

*On my arms her light hand rested,
Resting light as ocean foam;
O my darling Nellie Gray; they have taken her away,
And I'll never see—My Old Kentucky Home.*

So all the campus feels the spell of song,
Another chorus sings another tune,
A yodel song drifts backward from a group
Far out beyond the campus, till at length
The energy of singing is consumed.
The groups break up in ones and twos and threes;
Some seek their books, and others go to town,
And some to see a lady at the Shack.

BELBOY LECTURES

Exposes Chooseling, Frissing and Grafting — Palmistry and Black Arts Elucidated.

Prof. Francis Leonardo da Vinci y Basilisa Belboy, Chief Crook to His Lamented Majesty, Leopold of Belgium, for years professor and extension Lecturer in the Chair of Cunning, at the Technological Institute of Timbuctoo, and former Secretary of Grafting under Sahib Nihil Pasha, lectured at the C. O. D. Hall last evening to a large and appreciative audience on a special invitation tendered to him by the High Muckety Muck of the Lecture Committee.

The object of the lecture was to make money. The subject of the lecture was the same, preceded by "How." This subject was treated in detail, many examples being given. At the request of the committee, his principles were applied so as to be of benefit to college students.

Handwriting was the next subject taken up. The speaker showed how handwriting must be legible to be of service on examinations, ambiguity permitted. He gave numerous character readings from handwriting. If, for instance, a student persists in writing illegibly, even on subjects with which he is acquainted, the conclusion may be reached that he cannot write well, vice versa, vers vicia. When a theme is begun unwittingly with "My Dearest Hersey," it is fair to conclude that the writer is of an emotional character, and when a history quiz has "Darling Lap" for a superscription, its writer may be passed upon as a hopeless imbecile.

The next indecent exposure of the speaker was a method of matriculating for nothing practised by the students at Ryjkavik Theological Seminary. During the rush at the registrar's window, the crook passes an unsigned check on the registrar and gets a receipt. The registrar, having stooped to folly, learns too late that men betray.

In his discourse on chooseling, the speaker dwelt on money making schemes. One of the best instances cited by the speaker was the practice of erasing the prices on books by the Book Room in the Delhi College of Fine Arts. This was done, of course, to prevent mental anguish on the part of students. Books must be smuggled into this institution,

QUILL CLUB REORGANIZES

Radical Change in the Constitution of Journalistic Club.

At a recent meeting of the Quill Club, an organization of the newspaper reporters of Trinity College, the officers were elected for the approaching term. The following men were elected to office: President, Mr. Wright A. Lott; Vice-President, R. E. Porter; Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. O. I. Scribble.

During this meeting an important and long-needed change was incorporated into the constitution of the Quill Club. This amendment of the constitution provides for adding the words "and then some," in brackets, after the club's motto. The motto of the club will then read: "All the Nizes That's Fit to Print (And Then Some)."

The committee on obtaining papers for correspondents reported that it had obtained the following new papers for the society, for which it was necessary to obtain correspondents: The Airline Blade, The Funston Free Lance, The Cary Democrat and the Brassfield Weekly Citizen. The Spray Express and the Podunk Daily Observer have not yet been heard from.

and an additional ten to fifty cents added to bear the risk. Hence, prices must be raised, and the list price effaced. Again, he cited the example of the Euthanasian Literary Society at Samarcond, which levies a tax for commencement on all those in the city, whether they may be members or not, and the most ridiculous part of all, this society has the custom and, to a western mind, unjustifiable practice of charging both a fee for entrance, and a second fee for getting out. This Oriental sense of justice, the speaker said, was rapidly succumbing with the advance of civilization. The Buddhist Ministerials, he said, are responsible for the injustice.

After his open lecture, he gave a lecture to men only—faculty excluded—on the occult art of cutting Gym. The speaker asked that the principles here outlined be kept secret, as they were very valuable, and were so abstruse as not to be readily understood by the common populace.

WOMAN APPEARS IN DEBATE PRELIMINARY

Armored Excursion Train to be Run to Wake Forest.

Thursday night, in the beautiful Epworth Hall, the preliminary for the coming debate with Wake Forest College took place. A large number of men took part in the contest, and one woman, Miss Milly Fluous, took part in the speaking. The men who won places for the debate against Wake Forest were Messrs. I. B. Tawkatiff and L. O. Quacity.

The speeches Thursday were of an unusually high order. The appearance and the speech of Miss Milly Fluous deserve special commendation. The Athena Literary Society is to be congratulated on having produced such a mellifluous speaker.

Other men who tried for the debate were Messrs. I. C. H. Spreche, J. E. Parler, E. G. O. Dixit and O. Sasumore.

It was announced after the speeches were over that an excursion would be run to Wake Forest on the night of the debate. The train will be eight cars long, and will have three of the Southern's fastest engines attached. The cars will be armor-plated, and absolutely rock and brick-proof. The conductors will be provided with small Gatling guns for use in emergencies. The Durham police force will be in the rear coach.

The round-trip fare for the excursion will be only one dollar; and the passenger goes at his own risk. Accident and life insurance policies will be on sale at the station.

Club Meetings

The Fortnightly Club will meet Friday night, Maycember 16. Subject for discussion: "Boccaccio's Attitude Toward the Sunday-school."

The Classical Club-us will meet -us Aprary-us 16th -æ. Discussion-us of "Influence of Dime Novel on Homer's Diction."

The Historical Club next Monday night will discuss the historic dispute as to whether Sir Walter Raleigh smoked Auto-Bellum or Fatimas

VOLUME TWO OF CHANTICLEER OUT

Criticism of Novel Features by Chronic-Ill Reviewer.

The CHRONIC-ILL is glad to note the second appearance of its contemporary, The Chanticleer. The Chanticleer comes to us this year in quite a different garb from formerly. Last year its inside cover design was gleaming in purple and gold, yet carried a strong suggestion of "Gumby Life in America;" this year the book carries a strong medieval impression, bristling with castles, burghers, monasteries, and forty different varieties of distinctly legible Old English types.

The art editors claim to have received their medieval cue from the antique sound of the words Trinity and Chanticleer. They got their ideas of medieval architecture from some 1411 prints of the Trinity gymnasium and Science Hall.

A further example of subtle consistency with this medieval idea is the Social Calendar border design, consisting of a modern gentleman in conventional evening dress, facing a rather—er—unconventional Oriental lady on the opposite page.

Nowhere in the book, however, does the general plan conform so well to the medieval spirit suggested by the art department as in the book of humor. The editors of this department merit our highest praise. To an intense diligence of historical research, they have brought a healthy conservatism which will accept no material that has not received the approval of antiquity—or the Ladies Home Journal. The athletic editors are also to be felicitated, in one or two instances, for rescuing data from the oblivion of past years. Another marked characteristic of this department, it may be remarked in passing, is the classic restraint of the editors in singing individual praises.

The section of the book dealing with Seniors is one of the subtlest satires we have ever read. Omitting all mention of the pictures, which scream for themselves, we feel that we have not given this book a just review without noticing the keen, sly humor of the Senior editor. His method is to praise each subject unqualifiedly, thereby gratifying the vanity of the subject, which is the prime object of this department, and at the same time furnishing the sophisticated public with the basis of a hearty sarcastic laugh.

The general plan of The Chanticleer, by which we mean the division into separate labeled "books," is a distinct departure along the lines of scientific organization. The tradition of the unknown school boy who drew a rude sketch with the cautious legend, "This is a dawg," has in this instance exerted a very powerful effect

FEMINIST FORENSICS FINISH IN FISTICUFF

Discussion of Suffrage Question Warms to Tonsorial Tug.

At the last meeting of the Athena Literary Society, the question of woman suffrage for North Carolina was discussed. The question was decided in favor of the affirmative by the vote of the society.

In the midst of the debate, Miss Nora M. Wright and Miss U. R. Rong became engaged in a verbal encounter which very nearly ended in a fist fight. Indeed, the two ladies had both obtained a good grip on their opponent's hair when they were separated by some of the cooler members of the society.

The discussion arose over the assertion of Miss Nora M. Wright that the suffragette banner which was in use at that time would not be becoming when worn with anything but a simple house dress. At this statement, Miss U. R. Rong arose to a point of personal privilege. Miss Rong denied the assertion of Miss Wright, and claimed that the banner would be equally as becoming if worn with a pink silk evening dress embroidered with Irish lace. Miss Wright then informed Miss Rong that Miss Rong was evidently not cognizant of the latest fashions. Miss Wright replied hotly that she knew more about Parisian fashions than did Miss Rong.

Here the Presidentess rapped for order, but Miss Rong was not able to control herself after this disparaging remark of her opponent, and she seized Miss Wright by the hair. Miss Wright returned the compliment and the affair was just getting interesting when cooler heads put a stop to it.

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION!

O. T. Has a Very Strange Adventure and Narrow Escape.

Mr. O. T. Graham, whose reputation for veracity and sobriety is impeccable, yesterday came to a CHRONIC-ILL reporter with a tale calculated to make the blood of man run cold. O. T. claims that he is a marked man.

The older residents of the community will remember the formation of a vicious secret society on the campus last year, under the mystic name of "O. T." What the general campus dweller does not know, however, is that it was due to the keen insight and indefatigable investigations of Mr. Graham, the campus watchman, that several of these offenders were brought to justice. O. T. claims that the remnants of this band have been on his track ever since that memorable expose.

O. T. showed the reporter a large knot on his head where an unknown assailant hit him with a biscuit cooked at the North Dormitory.

Mr. C. R. Bagley emphatically corroborates Mr. Graham's account.

ORGANIZATION OF LOCAL POETS FORMED

Characteristic Pointers on Style by the Members

Thursday afternoon, at the instigation of Mr. Henry P. Hennis, who is well known locally as a patron of the belles lettres, a number of the verse writers of the community came together for the purpose of effecting a permanent organization.

After an introductory speech by Mr. Henry P. Hennis, in which he emphasized the importance of cultivating the spiritual and esthetic in modern literary life, Mr. B. U. McAndrews, author of "A Fool-Boy's Poems," read a selection from a poem of his entitled, "God and Nature, and Their Relation to Man." In this passage he reached quite a lofty pitch of poetic inspiration. "Mr. Syth Forgink read a paper on "The Lyric Touch," in which he took the ground that only rhyming tyros should regard the restrictions of verse technique; reading, in conclusion, a sonnet exemplifying both these qualities perfectly.

Perhaps the best production from a purely lyrical standpoint was a passionate lament by our co-ed poetess, full of homesickness and world-weariness—"I Long to See the Seething Sea."

Mr. I. M. Right, who has written voluminously under the nom-de-plume of D. Ni Light, gave some recondite ratiocination upon the subject of the elusivity and pabulum spiritual of the supracosmic reons. He gave a technical exegesis of some of his own cosmogenic lyrics, with especial attention to the use of italics for emphasis.

Mr. Dolton discussed the inanities of conventional poetry, and advocated the adoption of Whitman ideals.

The literary program was concluded by an earnest appeal for sentiment from Mr. Musshey E. Pence, who made an inspired talk on the text, "Talk not of wasted affection; affection never was wasted." In proof of his theories he read an appealing poem called "Love's Renunciation."

Several Men Leave College

Immediately following the State Fair at Raleigh in October, several gentlemen left college, ostensibly on account of ill health. It has recently leaked out, however, that these men were expelled for attending the Fair without the required permission. We publish this, not to humiliate the gentlemen in question, but merely for the sake of correcting a current misapprehension, for which our predecessor, the Chronicle, was responsible.

LOCALS

Heath Thomas, former editor of the Trinity Chronicle, was a visitor on the campus last night. Mr. Thomas, who took his A. B. at Trinity in 1903 and his A. M. at Harvard in 1906, was passing through here on his way to Swan Quarter, where he will accept a position as took his A. B. at Trinity in 1903 and his editor of the Swan Quarter Clarion.

"Big" Thomas Jones, former star forward of the Trinity basket-ball team, and All-Southern pitcher during 1906, has accepted a position with the Durham Street Commission. He will assume the duties of the shovel and broom on the first of next month.

Henry Zacharia Emanuel Smith, winner of the Braxton-Craven Prize in 1908, was on the campus yesterday, representing the S. Ellenquick Book Company, of New York City.

Rev. Horace I. Makespeache, '96, addressed the Ministerial Band last night on the subject of the Ministry. We regret that we are unable to publish his entire address.

N. E. Brady, '98, spent the night on the campus last Sunday. He spoke in rapturous terms of the Epworth Building, which he said reminded him of old times.

Mr. Golt Todfrey, of the Senior class, was called home yesterday by the death of his squirrel dog, "Trailer." It is not known at present whether he will return or not.

Dr. Mite B. Wright, a former student of this institution, paid us a short visit recently. Dr. Wright is a noted investigator and has gained county-wide fame for his original research work concerning the wriggle in the rabbit's nose and the midnight meow of what we threw our shoe at.

While returning from down town last night, Mr. Ced Leese was bit by a vicious dog several times on Main Street.

Mr. Mid Connelly, '96, Editor of the Bungleville Bugle, has just been awarded the Mendacity Medal by the State News Association. Thus our Alumni show evidences of the training received at their alma mater and we are indeed proud of them.

Mrs. Starvins, who does not conduct a boarding hall near the ball park, happened to a painful accident Saturday, when she let a meat knife slip and cut herself in the kitchen.

Mr. L. B. Gurley is experimenting for the Athena Literary Society on the proper use of cosmetics.

Our Aims

The CHRONIC-III, at its very inception, wants to make its good intentions and high ambitions thoroughly understood. If it cannot adopt a first-class, subservient attitude, it hopes the Administration will squelch it. It does not intend to raise any howl about shower-baths being out of commission, walks being muddy, or any other commonplace inconveniences which might stir up our contemporary, the Chronicle, into a foaming wrath of protest. No yellow journalism for us. We choose conservatism. We leave all protests to the late lamented Students' Life Committee.

What we do want to do is to boost That's what we're here for—to boost Ich Diene, ich boothche—this is our motto.

We Adopt the Nu Spelling

Following the exampl of our erudite friends, the Editors of the Trinity Kronikl, the KRONIK-III will, after this issue, take it upon itself to use the modern spelling. According to our ideas this nu spelling is by far the most satisfactory that has bin discovered. It saves lost energy, and it saves a grate deel of time that wud otherwise hav bin aloud to go to waste.

Roosevelt, the gratest exponent of the nu sistem, ses that this is the only sensible way to rite; and we, together with the Editors of the Kronikl, take our stand with that most notable figur in the world today.

Indeed, there is no doubt but that this method is an improvement over the old stile of riting. The modern method givs an infinitely beter sound to all words and frases which wun has ocasion to use. It is absolutely lojkl, and everywun should use it. It givs a finer swing to the Inglish language than anything els could possibly give it. Even the poorest riter can with eez imitate Chancer by merely nizing this stile of recawding his thaunts. We hope our readers will appreciate our efforts to be quite up-to-date in our publikashun of this weekly paper for the men and wumin of this grate skool.

Advice to Incoming Freshmen

A skool's gratest strength is its Freshmen. Even the Freshmen themselves will admit this. Therefore it behooves us to extend a few words of modest advice to these gentlemen—before our esteemed contemporary, the Chronicle, reprints its stereotyped welcome next fall. Not that we think we can tell you anything new, dearly beloved—we realize the firm courtesye with which we would be shown our proper place in that event—but merely to hint modestly that we know some of the conditions, too.

Immediately upon reaching the college call upon the president and inform him of your arrival. This is nothing but courtesye, and you cannot afford to neglect it. After smoking one of his cigars, inquire of him casually as to who is the best all-round fellow on the cammps. Of course we could tell you that, ourselves, but modesty forbids—we will leave that to the president. Having learned the fellow's name, write him a personal note, informing him of your arrival, and proposing to room with him, provided, of course, he neither chews, curses, nor corresponds with Hinds and Noble.

Stick to your Catalogue as closely as your Sunday-school teacher told you to stick to your Bible, and your father, to stick to your pocket-book. It is the schedule by which college affairs are regulated, and you can rely upon the absolute authenticity of all its statements and descriptions.

Be very wary, for the first two or three weeks, of associating with men wearing white ribbons, with "Greater Trinity Club" printed on them. These men all represent boarding houses, and of course you will be expected to take your meals with the Dean.

We take it for granted that you will ignore Chapel.

Ask the Deem for a list of Crip Courses. He will be glad to oblige you—everybody will, for that matter. Avoid these Crip Courses carefully. It is undignified for a man of your position, who led the Podunk High School in scholarship, to bep a Crip.

We thank you for listening to our random remarks.

BOOK REVIEWS

Messrs. Dimball and Kellinger Publish a New Volume.

Since the appearance of that most enigmatical book, "The Failure of Success," in which these two gentlemen handled the great problems of the American college with their usual acuteness of mental insight, the college public has been eagerly awaiting the appearance of the sequel promised by the authors, in answer to the pressure brought upon them by the reading public.

This book, the title of which is "A Practical Manual of Excuses for College Students," has now come forth from the press of the Trinity Pressing Company, and is on sale at all college book rooms, at the usual self-sacrificing prices.

The book has a purely academic significance, and is of an eminently practical nature, as might have been expected from the personality of the authors. It fills a long felt need in the academic world, and we prophesy the necessity of an early second edition. After an able introductory chapter on the Ethics of Excuses, and an eminently practical demonstration of the necessity of excuses in modern life, the authors narrow down their treatment to the needs of modern college life. They divide their field into three general divisions: 1. How to Evade Gymnasium Duties; 2. How to Get Excused for Cutting Classes; 3. Remedies for Transient Troubles. Under these three heads they have collected and arranged alphabetically all the general excuses which have been infecting American colleges for the last fifty years. It is suggested that the student may now simply refer the authorities to a number in this book, and be excused, rather than go through the usual tedious formality. We commend the book. It is a rare example of practical fruition from detailed research.

JANUARY ARCHIVE OFF THE PRESS

The Literary Section is Especially Good in This Issue.

The January number of the Archive has just come off the press. It contains this month some of the best material, from a literary standpoint, that it has ever produced. The editors of this great publication are to be congratulated upon their fine efforts, the excellent results of which are to be seen in the present issue.

The magazine opens with a poem by Will Havern Orange, entitled, "When Feathered Songsters Sang Among the Sour Apple Trees." This poem is one of the best pieces of pastoral poetry which the contributors to the Archive have ever produced. The third verse, which is one of the most beautiful in the whole poem, deserves to be quoted here: "When feathered songsters sang among the sour apple trees,

Then herdsman Hal upheld his head,
and whispered to the breeze:
'O Molly dear; O Molly mine! Now
yield thee to my rule!
O Molly, dearest, Molly—my cunning
Molly Cule.'"

The short story by L. Doughnohoo, entitled "Languishing Lilly's Love," is without doubt the best article of any kind that has ever appeared on the pages of the Archive. As can be seen from the name, this story contains none of that absurd, foolish, and "slushy" sentimentalism so often found in college publications.

Other articles in this issue which are worthy of mention are: "The Influence of Love on Politics," an essay by Cavinness; "Rescue the Perishing," a short story by A. Ungry Boarder; "What was She Before She Was What She Is?" a problem poem by Hall Tyme Figgerin; and an editorial on "The Hardness of the Hardy Hard," by H. Ardhooy.

Ministerial Band Meets

The weekly meeting of the Ministerial Band was held last Friday in their commodious quarters in the Academic Building, which was erected for this specific purpose.

The evening being set aside as a members' meeting, there was no outside speaker. Members on the program were soon called upon and several short addresses of local pep were then showered forth.

Worthy of particular note was the eloquent discourse of Bro. I. B. Aslaughtner on the "Slaughter of the Sheep," and the touching utterances of Bro. M. L. Hayman, "Making Hay While the Sun Shines." This latter discourse was followed by an encouraging and joyous dissertation by Bro. R. A. Reap entitled "Reaping the Harvest."

The president announced as the speaker for the next meeting, Rev. Mr. Iva Beenthere, who will speak on the subject, "Preaching as a Means of a Livelihood." This is a subject in which many are vitally interested and it is thought that the bald-head seats will go at a premium.

Science Club Meeting

The meeting of the Science Club, which was postponed last Monday evening in order that the members might attend the Arcade, was held Monday evening in the Physics Gas Room of the Crowell Apartment House.

The meeting was called to order by the President, Mr. F. H. Tayllinger. The formalities of the order were then entered into, after which the president introduced the speaker of the occasion, Dr. A. Rotten Ghlglabber, Professor of Bi-Metallic Geology in the University of Eloon.

Prof. Ghlglabber announced as his subject, "Evidences of Ragtime Music on the Planet Mars." This, he said, was the embodiment of research work carried on by him in the Carnegie Observatory at Eloon.

He began his lecture by defining the term "Ragtime." This term, he said, had been misconstrued and misinterpreted so often that he wished to confine his meaning here "to the plain, pure and undiluted significance of the music heard in our theatres, dance halls, dime shows, on street corners, and in college communities."

The main part of the lecture was then broached, and Prof. Ghlglabber showed by his pleasing delivery, his fascinating personality, and his ready flow of what gets the politician a job, that he is the complete master of his subject.

Before taking his seat the speaker thanked the club profusely for this, his first lecture before such an able and eminent body of young scientists.

The president announced that at the next meeting Mr. Turp N. Tyne would read a paper on "What Makes the Wild Cat Wild?"

GREAT LECTURER COMING SOON

Prophetic Message to be Delivered by Professor Softhead

"My Dear Sirs:

If you want your students to see the light and hear the truth, have them assembled at Chapel tomorrow morning.

(Signed) PROF. IMA SOFHEAD,
Envoy Prince of Peace."

The above sententious announcement, received today by the Faculty, may now be seen on the official bulletin board, whence all other notices have been temporarily removed in order to give it the proper prominence.

Mr. Softhead is a speaker of renown—a Man with a Mission—who has even appeared before the United States Congress. It has been a matter of considerable difficulty to obtain such a lecturer, and the students should show their appreciation by a full attendance. "We are trying to make the Chapel services attractive," said an influential member of the Faculty to a CHRONIC-ILL reporter. "We want to live up to the interest somewhat." Softhead is a man with a punch to what he says. We hope soon to be able to announce another lecture by Colonel Cody."

TRINITY MAN GETS PATENT

Great Aid to Classicists Soon to be Marketed

Mr. B. Keen, who is recognized locally as one of the most proficient classical students in the State, has recently obtained a patent on his new device, "A Handy Aid to Classicists," and hopes soon to have it on the market. A stock company, headed by Mr. A. Sub Latimer, has been formed to produce the "Aid," and the stock has been subscribed twice over by the Freshman class. Mr. Keen has already received an offer from Hinds and Noble, who, we understand, wish to hold the patent and suppress the manufacture of the "Aid," but he has decided to give humanity the benefit of his cleverness.

The device consists of an ordinary loose-leaf book binder, with a small cylinder concealed in the "back" of the binder. The binder holds the classic text, while the cylinder, which works exactly like a window shade, contains an India-paper, verbatim translation. When in use, the translation is unrolled over the text and held in place with the thumb. When the thumb is taken up, the translation automatically winds back into the cylinder.

Several days ago the CHRONIC-III sent a reporter to interview the Professors of Latin and Greek in regard to this invention. Nothing has since been heard of him.

A Letter of Protest

The CHRONIC-III has received the following letter, which it publishes in accordance with the writer's request:

JIMSON WEED JUNCTION.

Editor CHRONIC-III:

Dear Sir: Kin you tell me whats the matter with my Tom. Last yeer he made 95 at the Jimson Weed High School, but I understand he has flunked two courses at Trinity College. Ma and me cant understand it. I think there must be something wrong with your college when a bright boy like him flunks. Why havent you sent in his grade on his Arcade course? That is the only course he likes, but you forgot to send his grade on that. Why dont you change the Chapel hour? Here you write me and complain that he dont atend chapel, and he says it makes him get up too soon. Boys need plenty of sleep.

Yours truly,

JAMES SOON

We don't know why this letter was addressed to us, rather than the college office. However, we invite the attention of the Hard Boys' Association to this matter.

A Queer Discovery

A few days ago a student, seeking to discover the reason why his room was so cool while the May sun was burning up everything outside, found that his radiator was packed with ice, which yet remained from last winter's freeze-ups. This suggests the possibility of eventually putting radiators to some practical use.

Unprovoked Attack

Several students have reported to the CHRONIC-III one of the most unusual cases of assault on record at the college. The affray took place in the hall of the East Dormitory. Mr. Cobb Webb, one of the oldest and most respected citizens of this community, was occupying one of the farther corners of the hall. The spectators all agree that he was doing nothing that could in any way be termed offensive. Must Rest, one of the colored janitors in charge of the building, happened to be passing at this time, with a broom, the property of the Historical Museum. Now, a broom, as the few who have seen one in operation will testify, is a very dangerous weapon, if skillfully handled. Rest walked up to Webb, and, without a word, hit him with the broom. Before the spectators could interfere, Webb had been knocked down. So severely was he handled that his recovery is doubtful. The janitor, upon being turned over to the police, professed the deepest contrition, and said he did not know what had induced him to perform so unwonted an act.

The New Art Movement

At length the new Cubist and Futurist movements in art have exercised an influence on the local artists. Mr. L. B. Gurley's study, "The Meditative Freshman," is an especially keen application of Futurist principles. To the uninitiated the bust of the Freshman appears to be nothing but a blank, solid cube of wood, but to the initiated it appears a perfectly true-to-life reproduction.

Suit Brought Against Archive

Mr. Tennyson Keats Greener, of the Freshman class, has brought suit against the Trinity Archive for $2,000, for alleged mental anguish. Mr. Greener contends that he submitted to that publication, his best lyric, "Your Eyes Are Blue," but had it unceremoniously turned down. Mr. Greener contends that while his matter was being held by the Archive he might easily have disposed of it to the Atlantic Monthly for $3,500. He also contends that the editor rejected it, not on its merits, but out of professional jealousy.

Mr. Greener's counsel is trying to get the case moved to another community for trial, saying that it would be impossible to convince a local jury that the Archive ever rejected anything.

Announcement

The CHRONIC-III, intends, in its future issues, to present a succession of interviews with our most important citizens, covering subjects of local, national and international interest. We take great pleasure in announcing, for our next issue, an interview with Dean Hunt on the subject, "Artistic Landscape Gardening; French Formalism and Oriental Exuberance."

Book Thievery

Of late there has been considerable complaint in the community about the theft of books. Mr. Mack Leese reports the loss of a de luxe volume of Boethius' Consolations of Philosophy. Mr. Cay I. Ness complains that some one has stolen from him a volume called The Social Arts, and Mr. Brennie Finn has been robbed of The Theodosian Code. Such a shameful state of affairs should be ended immediately.

New Secret Societies

The social life of the community has been enriched by the addition of two new secret societies.

Last Thursday twelve members of the Freshman class, under the name "Nights of Leisure," perfected an organization for the promotion of closer relations between the Faculty and students who fail to pass their work.

On the succeeding night a number of the most progressive members of the Sophomore class organized the "Polish Knights of the Bath." The purpose of this organization is stated to be the promotion of closer relations between the Sophomore and Freshman classes.

Faculty Meeting Postponed

The CHRONIC-III is requested to announce that the regular Faculty meeting has been postponed from Thursday until some day next week, on account of the opening baseball game. The postponement is regarded as a distinct victory for the more progressive element of the body, as there was strong opposition to the move by some of the members. The objection raised was that at this meeting the question of the expulsion of two men was to be referred to the Faculty by the President. The offenses in question were the repeated cutting of gymnasium and chapel by the men, both of whom are members of the Sophomore class.

The petition for the postponement was circulated by Prof. Mushey E. Pence, and signed by a large majority of the members.

Fatal Cutting Affray

As the CHRONIC-III goes to press, reports come to us of a serious cutting affray. Some unknown Senior, in broad daylight, attacked Mr. Jim Class, and cut him so seriously that it is doubtful whether he can survive later than June, at the best. Mr. Class was rescued by Captain Hard, of the Trinity College Faculty, who accidentally happened to be present at the time. The miscreant fled, but in his haste he dropped a handkerchief marked H. L. W. With this as a clue, the authorities are confident of soon being able to bring the criminal to justice.

Ballade of Dead Organizations

BY THE GHOST OF FRANCOIS VILLON

Tell me now where the Deutscher Verein is,
Where they gibbered in Dutch of yore—
Dutch, whose melody divine is,
Dutch, whose unlauts never bore?
Where is the Chess Club (queen that pawn!)
Lovers of text-books too, we fear—
Where have their kings and bishops gone?—
But where are the snows of yesteryear?

Where is the Student Life Committee,
Christened on high as kickers?
Where's the T Club? (Oh the pity,
That still the hard-boy snickers!)
Where is the Alpha Sigma Tau—
Dwells it in this hemisphere?
Where has it gone in its solemn awe—
But where are the snows of yesteryear?

Where's the Writers' Club's hibernation,
Hid from the eyes of man?
Where is the Tennis Association?
Where's Mu Kappa Klan?
Where are the Heroes of the Track? —
They whose victories we hear—
Where are they all? Alas, alack—
But where are the snows of yesteryear?

L'ENVOI

Nay, never ask this week, fair Lord,
Where they are gone, nor yet this year,
Save with this much for an overword—
But where are the snows of yesteryear?

DR. LAPRADE (reading in chapel)—"The hairs of my head are numbered."
FRESHMAN—"I don't doubt it!"

BOST (to Raleigh hotel waiter, after bill for piece of steak had been rendered)—"Just drive that bull on in here. I see you've charged me for all of him."

BEN FEW (after finishing last loaf of sugar in the bowl at a Raleigh cafe)—"They are the best mints I ever ate!"

A stranger, having business of some kind with Dr. ——— recently, entered the room where the Doctor was holding a class. Not wishing to disturb the class, the gentleman took a seat near the back of the room. After some time he leaned over to a weary-looking Sophomore next to him and said: "How long has he been lecturing?"

"Several years in this college alone," replied the Soph.

"Oh, well then," said the man; "I'll wait; he must be almost through."

"I am not going to make a speech," said the truthful member of the literary society; "I have something to say."

DR. BROWN—"What we want is unity and coherence. Don't put things where they don't belong. Why, you wouldn't put horses in the Faculty building, would you? Would you, now? Would you?"

DROWSY SOPHOMORE (sotto voce)—"Don't know; they keep donkeys in there now."

DR. GLASSON (on Economics I)—"Yes, the very richest men in the world carry only a very small amount of money with them. I have only a couple of dollars with me, myself!"

WAITER (in a New York hotel)—"How will you have your steak, sir?"

DOCTOR PARKER (absent-mindedly)—"Well done, good and faithful servant."

SENIOR—"Do you understand French, Freshman?"

FRESHY—"Yes, if it's spoken in English."

"Py chiminy, how dot poy studies the languages!" exclaimed the elderly German father of one of our Juniors when his son called him a blear-eyed son of a saw-horse.

If a Co-ed couldn't write German, could Wannie-maker?

If some one hid a Few Brown Easter eggs, would Dean Hunt? Certainly, if he had his Glass-on.

Who is that paper for? For-sythe.

'Tis said there are many cuts where Bobby flowers.

What is it that makes Mount so pleasant?

If anybody else was singing, wouldn't Kim-hawl.

"What kind of a star is that crap-shooter wearing?" That's a shooting star.

POLITE MEMBER OF GREATER TRINITY CLUB (To incoming Freshman)—"Where are you to room this year?"

FRESHMAN—"Epworth Hall."

SENIOR (Absent-mindedly)—"Inn?"

FRESHMAN—"Yes, sir; in there."

It is said that when Dr. Brown returned from a trip to Europe he was heard to say: "I enjoyed hearing the French pheasants singing the mayonnaise very much."

Time—Immediately after Chapel. Place—Entrance to West Duke Building.
1ST STUDENT (to Prof. with suit-case)—"Going off, Professor S——?"

PROF.—"Yes, I'm always going off."

2ND STUDENT—"Ever half cocked?"

A riddle worse than the riddle propounded by the Sphinx in olden days, a mystery insolvable, a thing intangible and incomprehensible: such are Professor Forsythe's French jokes!

COLLEGE BOY—"Billie, do you know German, too?"

BILLIE—"Yes, sir."

COLLEGE BOY—"Let's see how much German your father has taught you. Can you speak any German words?"

BILLIE—"Yes, sir; I can say 'gosh.'"

Sophomores assert that this is a typical review question as given in English II:

Know everything about everybody living before or after the time of Ascham; tell the vocation of all of Ascham's forefathers back to the first of the fourth century; be able to recite the first four pages of the Schoolmaster backwards; cite from memory 4,500 old English expressions; be able to trace the influence that Adam and Eve exerted on the life of Ascham; give a list of all the books that Ascham is known to have read; give a detailed account and description of the wart on the right side of Ascham's grandfather's wife's nose; be able to give Ascham's view of internal revenue, high tariff for protection, prohibition, and incubators; be able to trace all the words in the book back to the original root in Latin or Greek, and give six synonyms for each in the Sanscrit language; and name Ascham's favorite corn-cure. (The quiz will not be detailed, but will consist of these more important facts of Ascham's life).

FRESHMAN—"Yes, I have my final excruciation on Latin this morning."

The poetically inclined father of one of our Sophs., on sending a check to his young hopeful, inclosed the following classical lines:

*"Handle it carefully,
Watch it with care;
Spend it most tearfully—
No more nowhere!"*

VERDANT FRESHMAN—(To Professor Forsythe)—"Do you want these translations in ink?"

PROFESSOR FORSYTHE—"No, sir; I want them in English."

On Professor F.'s second year German class the translation was the story of a crowd of German students out having a night of it—carousing and singing, dancing and drinking, and having a merry, foolish time of it in general. When the paragraph had been finished, Professor F. hesitated a moment with an expression of one who is thinking of the pleasures of the past, and said: "That reminds me—" He was unable to finish. He merely blushed and was silent.

LOST—The points of Doctor Gates' jokes. Finder will receive a liberal reward if returned to the President and members of the class of 1915.

DANCING TEACHER—"How are you on the new dances?"

CAVINESS—"Hub! A little slow on the foot work, but I'm right there on the grapple!"

Base-Ball! Base-Ball!

THE GREATEST GAME OF THE SEASON

The Big Faculty vs. The Little Seniors

There have been games of ball, but none like this since the palmy days when John the Baptist strode nonchalantly through the wilderness. The Seniors have sworn vengeance on their naughty opponents, but the dignified deep thinkers declare that no bunch of muckrakers like the class of 1913 shall take one cubit from their statues.

By kindness of John Love, the music will be furnished by the "Ministerial Band."

For the benefit of the crowd—entirely for the benefit of the large crowd present—one of the more prominent Greek Letter men will attempt to drink a bottle of Pepsi Cola. This feat alone will be worth the price of admission, as this has never been attempted by a frat man before.

Despite the fact that the upper classmen boast of five varsity men, Duff Lewis is betting dollars to "Grand" checks on the philosophers; while Culbreth and Slaughter are looking stakes for their teammates. Any one who is a sport and wishes to gamble fairly will do well to call on one of these gentlemen. They will treat you right.

But 'tis the naked truth, around which the "College Tailors" will shortly cast a nobby Norfolk, that, laying aside all B. S. (which abbreviation means base-ball sarcasm), the personnel of the doctors' team would make Matty shiver in his shoes or Joe Wood smoke with envy.

The faculty, personally and collectively, threaten to run a dark beast of burden in the box. L(ong). A(arm). Forsythe, the high-salaried contortionist recently imported from the Arctic regions just for this game, has a wind-up which resembles a fat terrier with the duplex vertigo. It is whispered here and there among the knowing ones that "Mink" will catch the game. This is absolutely his first appearance in professional base-ball, and for the benefit of those who have never seen the famous beauty in action, the faculty wish to state that he is a meek and gazelle-like receptacle for the elusive spit-ball, the tantalizing up-shoot, and the mesmerizing Salome ball—all of which come oozing up to the plate like C. White and J. Brinn riding a gravy to Doc Skinner's. The Salome ball is entirely original with the new pitcher, and while there's nothing special on it, many have fallen hopeless victims to the delicious curve.

The infield will probably be the same, while Laprade, Webb, and Spence have been chosen to protect the outer gardens. The first was chosen because of the immense plot of ground which he covers individually, and the last named is noted for the graceful manner in which he cavorts around the field, much resembling a possum hunter in the Dismal Swamp.

The grave and learned nine have issued printed notices to the effect that after the game, the Seniors will eat out of their hand as has heretofore been their custom for the last four years. But the four-year men with much gilded effrontery affirm that the transcendent ambitions of their advisers will be prostrated in the gritty bacterial dust, in plain sight of wife and sweetheart. "So complete," they say, "will be the ignominiousness of it all that the teachers will perforce be constrained to take the taunts, jibes and jeers of their conquerors, as a dog must needs submit to the cutaneous perambulations of the friendly, freckled, frisky flea." And they add somewhat unwillingly that bottles will assail the grim umpire in such showers that the campus will be in danger of a booze famine for an entire week.

SPECIAL FEATURES

Every student will be required to answer the following questions:

1. Should women vote?
2. Are you a Mormon?
3. Sh! have you a bottle on your clothes?

O. T. will handle the indicator.

Mr. W. G. Sheppard will donate beautiful bouquets of flowers to the deserving players.

Just before the game is called, a tall, handsome brunette will pass among the spectators distributing cards bearing this inscription: "Mr. W. Ira Bost," the merest mention of which will allow you ten per cent discount anywhere in the State.

While the pitchers are warming up, there will be a clever wrestling bout between big Farrar and Freshman Turner; the two opponents are pretty evenly matched, except the latter has a little more name, his whole handle, s'il vous plait, being William Jennings Bryan. What advantage the former may have in weight will be more than offset by the foot-work of the latter, whose namesake was a noted long distance runner himself in his day.

All in all, the afternoon offers an excellent program, and any one holding a slight grudge against his mother-in-law and wishing to even up matters, will do well to bring her out.

—Charlie Bagley.

"Doc" Hackney had the following sign in his dope joint this year: "Go to Washington and see Wilson walk to the White House for ten cents."

THINGS WE OUGHT TO TELL

That the Seniors also ran.
That Widow Duncan was never married.
That Mr. Hardee will swear that Chem. IV is no cinch.
That Alspaugh Hall is not a domicile for the idle rich.
That Henry Sherrod sings splendidly for the amount of training he has received.

THINGS WE OUGHT NOT TO TELL

That Ikey Wilson is not a near relative of Woodrow.
How long Monk Knott has been here.
The percentage of games won or lost by the Junior Class Basket-ball team.
That Pig Dennis looked the best he could when his photograph was taken.
That there are more members of the chapel choir who can't sing than there are who can sing.
That the college tailors compose a trust.

THINGS WE DON'T KNOW—MERELY A FEW OF 'EM

How that joke got out on Lotspiech.
Where Doc. Terrell got all his pep on Education VI.
Whether Moses or Aristotle originated the jokes in this department.
Who wrote that insurrectionary editorial in the Chronicle.
Where the milk at the boarding-house got that azure tint.
Whether or not the Faculty would ship us if we published all the jokes suggested.
What was the basis of the pre-historic contention that estranged Trinity and Carolina.
The score—Trinity vs. Catholic University.
What made Prof. Wannamaker last spring say Swink instead of Smike.

There's a prof. who in meeting his classes,
Shows a wonderful love for the lasses;
O your Ed, he may flunk,
But no matter how punk,
The good-looking Co-ed—she passes.

A tired Freshman in the literary society leaned over to his neighbor one night during an extra long oration, and asked: "Do you know why that long-winded speaker is like a cat's tail?"

"No," answered his astonished companion; "Why?"
"Because it's fur to the end!" sighed the first Freshman.

CARMEN DOCTORUM LATINORUM

(Par-donus, O Swifts)

O Caesar 'ad a Romanos,
An Pompeius et jam;
Poppeia 'ad tu mane bos—
Vas Cicero a clam?

DR. FEW (in chapel)—This business of throwing snow-balls through windows is childish, besides being one of the worst conceivable manifestations of thuggery. It cannot be tolerated, etc.

PROF. PEGRAM (reading from Bible)—"Fret not thyself because of evil doers."

DR. FEW (to a late Bible class on February 6)—You Seniors must be taking the mid-year examinations for a Catastrophe rather than an Episode.

CHEMIC GOSSIP

You tell me Nick L. Carbon-ate
Potassium with apatite?
Why such a tale is silly-Kate,
But while Nick wouldn't, Dolo-mite.

Now, who said Silver Io-dyed,
And who called Ethyl-lean?
This Carbon?—Well, old Nick L. lied;
I know, for Kerro-seen.

PROF. G. (on Ec. I)—Mr. Paris, how may citizenship be attained in the United States other than by birth?

MR. PARIS (promptly)—By neutralization.

MR. C (approaching Math. Prof.)—Professor, I believe my brother is taking your Math—.

MATH. PROF.—Oh! no, it is true that he has been exposed to it, but I hardly think there is any danger of his taking it.

Some ride the gravy while in college. Some Grind for the glories of a life to come—
Ah! take the cash and let the credit go,
Nor heed the rumble of a distant drum.

—FROM THE COLLEGE RUBAIYAT.

FRESHMAN (cogitating on the Latin examinations) "Nihil, nisi, bone 'em."

Apropos of the many names to be found written on the walls of the old Inn, and in many other places about the campus, the following from Eli Perkins will be interesting:

*"Whence'er I see a fellow's name
Written on the glass,
I know he owns a diamond,
And his father owns an ass."*

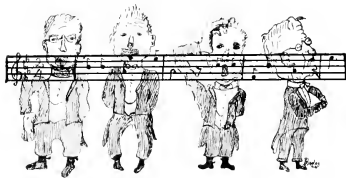

In writing a sketch of that renowned night-hawk, that never-sleeping guardian of our campus, that all-seeing eye of the faculty which is designated by the expressive term "O. T.," one must search carefully through all the intricacies of a Webster's Unabridged to find words suitable to express his awful dignity of person. At his appearance, which is always sudden and unexpected, every student assumes an unusual air of scholarly preoccupation. His name is heard ringing across the campus at all hours of the night. "O. T." is one of the founders and charter members of the ancient and honorable order known as the Ananias Club. His application is now being considered for membership in "Die Schwer-Knaben," or the Hard Boys' Club. He is Worthy Grand Chaplain of the Durham chapter of the American Prevaricators' Union. And his honors are all deserved!

Each term two hundred freshmen brings, you say;
Yes, but where leaves the fresh of yesterday?
And this same college year that brings the fresh,
Three times their worth of Seniors sends away.

Well, let them graduate; what have we to do
With freshman, junior, and such bazoo?
Let prof and prexy thunder as they will,
And dean call to his office—heed not you.

—FROM THE COLLEGE RUBAIYAT.

BEHIND THE BARS

A moment's halt, a momentary taste
Of college life—what father calls a waste;
And lo! The college-man has reached
The nothing he set out from; Oh, make haste!

—FROM THE COLLEGE RUBAIYAT.

A Fresh was once given a tip,
To hop the C Course for a crip;
And he now works away,
Forty-three hours a day,
And wrathfully froths at the lip.

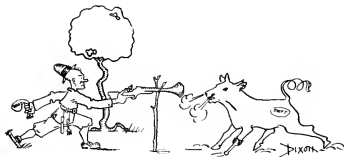

Why, if the grad can fling his books aside,
And lordly on the gravy train can ride;
Wer 't not a shame, wer 't not a shame,
In undergraduate boning to abide?

—FROM THE COLLEGE RUBAIYAT.

For I remember stopping by the way
To watch a freshman jack his weary way
Through Livy, while the Jack, like Baalam's ass,
Protested, "Gently, brother, gently, pray."

—FROM THE COLLEGE RUBAIYAT.

The Mink when he's holding a class,
Has notions decidedly crass;
He thinks it most comic,
And so economic,
To make a man feel like an ass.

RIDING THE GRAVY

There once lived a college debater,
Who was also a deuce of a skater;
O Mike, it was great,
To see that man skate,
On the top of his steam radiator.

APOLOGIA

Only those who have tried can understand fully the lack of anything funny in the labors of a humorous editor. In the present case, the two editors of this department first proceeded to take certificates of stock and receive full membership rights in the Prevaricator's Union. They are also bona fide members of the Knockers' Club, and are therefore not liable to suit by those whom they may chance to make mad. This department, therefore, is to be no respecter of persons, but will perpetrate its jokes on students and faculty alike. Organizations and individuals will both receive their proper attention. Male and female; graduate and undergraduate; hard-boys and preachers; all will come in for their proper share as far as possible.

Acknowledgment

The CHANTICLEER takes this opportunity to thank those who, though not officially connected with the publication, have yet contributed to it and have aided in making the book possible. Among these are:

For contributions to the art department—D. W. Bagley, R. S. Henderson, Lawrence Dixon and Wesley Taylor.

For literary material—Dr. W. P. Few, Prof. L. A. Forsythe and Prof. H. E. Spence.

SAVE and PAVE the WAY to HAPPINESS

THOMAS CARLISLE once said, "Happiness means contentment, and contentment is due to having enough coin of the realm laid aside to insure ammunition and arms when the wolf knocks at your door."

*Ever stop to think of that—
"When the wolf knocks?"*

Isn't it time to stop and consider the future now—what it shall be for you and yours?
